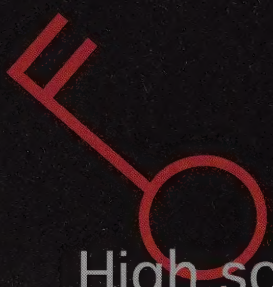
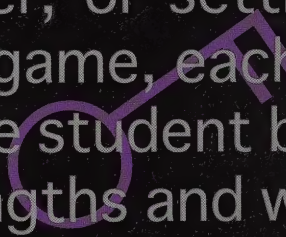
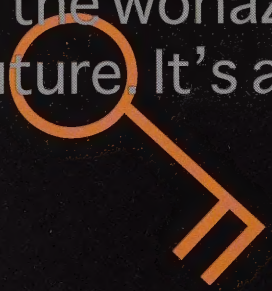
Each of us has a memory locked inside. A memory no one knows, one captured and held close. It is there, deep within, and a part of the past.

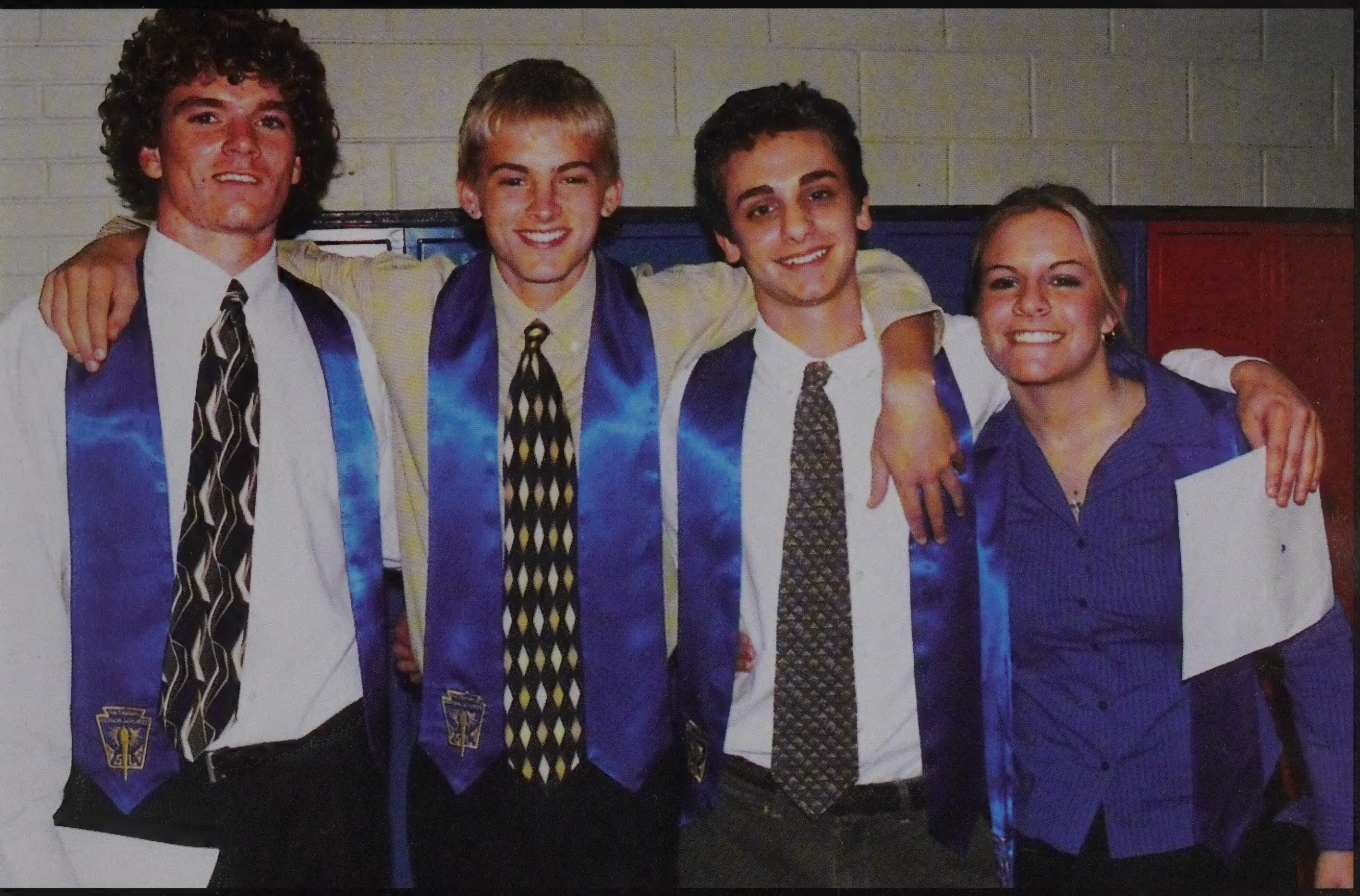
High school has become a time when it is too difficult to hold secrets inside. There are numerous activities happening each day in our lives. We have come to the realization that memories and secrets are but fleeting moments, too soon forgotten, if not shared with our friends and families. This is our time to begin discovering the true person hidden within. Stress, responsibility, and determination to succeed are all key factors in surviving the everyday workload, but now is also our time to shine.

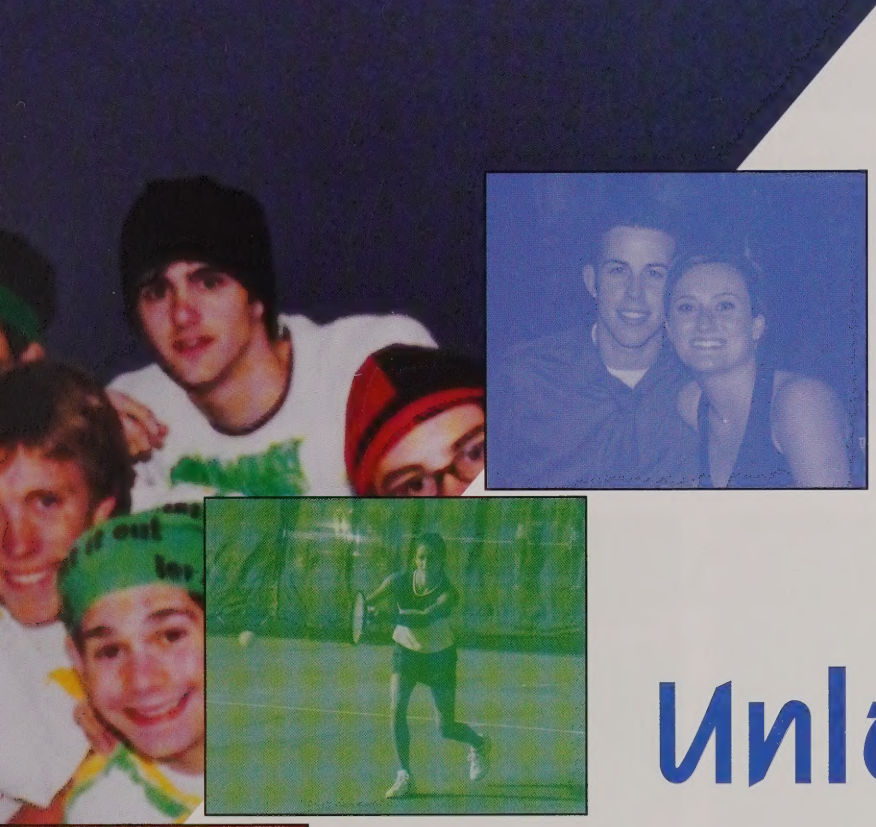




High school is when we put to the test our greatest abilities. Whether it is joining a sports team, becoming a club officer, or setting a goal to attend every football game, each one of us must find our place in the student body. It is time to discover our strengths and weaknesses, to triumph and to fail, to learn and to experience as much as possible before we set out in the worläZ Now is the time to prepare for the future. It's all about finding the right key...







Unlocking Your...

- Getting a chance to Show your wild side
- Becoming closer with your Peers
- Loosing your voIce from cheering so loudly
- Going gReen and gold
- An entire class comIng together
- These are The moments you will remember FOREVER

Why do you like Spirit Week?

"I love Spirit Week! It's the funnest time of the year! From wearing pajamas to showing off school colors, I have made so many memories."

Senior Brenna Kennedy

"I like Spirit Week because it gives me a chance to unite with my class."

Junior Carly Moore

Top Right: Preparing for the Powder Puff football game, Seniors Jessi Elgin and Jenna Walquist practice their defensive skills. "Playing with all the girls in my class made Powder Puff awesome," said Elgin. Many juniors and seniors contributed to class rivalry by participating in Powder Puff.

Bottom Right: Juniors Lindsey Wagner and Chris Fisher show their school spirit on class distinction day. "Being able to wear black on Class Distinction day really made me feel like a junior," said Wagner. Each class dressed uniquely.

Spirit Week Madness

hurricane isabel wasn't able to dampen students spirits

Despite Hurricane Isabel taking a week away from Spirit Week preparations, students did not cease to show their spirit. Tuesday started off the week with pajama day, followed by green and gold day on Wednesday. Thursday came through with the classic twin day. "Twin day was fun because it gave me the opportunity to dress like my older sister for once without her making fun of me," said Freshmen Kellyn Cunningham. Friday threw in a new twist for class distiction with Freshman wearing white and Sophomores opting for green attire rather than the traditional gym suits. Juniors were decked out in black, and Seniors wore the classic togas, except this year they were adorned with dollar signs because of the Monopoly theme. The halls were filled with fun and games such as Barrel of Monkeys, Clue, Chess, and Monopoly. The Junior Class won the hallway competition, while the Senior's took the coveted spirit stick. "I like Spirit Week because it is the one week out of the year when everyone is united in Cavalier and class spirit," said Senior Rahul Banerjea. Spirit Week gave students an opportunity to unite as a class in friendly competition.

"While supporting the junior class girls us guys got a chance to show off our femine side by cheerleading."

Junior Tim Clark

"It was fun trading places with the football players."

Junior Jenica Dodge

Top Right: While in position, Senior Jenna Walquist, waits for the play to begin. "Actually being able o show our more tough side and proving that we can be as hardcore as the guys was fun," said Walquist. The plays came in handy as they led the seniors to victory.

Bottom Right: Seniors T.J. Brennan and Graham Todd cheer their fellow senior girls out on the field. "I really enjoyed being a cheerleader for a day and wearing the do-rag. Especially the do-rag," said Brennan. After the days the guys practiced, they showed off what they learned in their stunts and cheers.

Reversing Roles

girls and guys break onto new ground by shattering the traditional views

Women are supposed to be passive and seem delicate and frail, while the men are supposed to be aggressive and strong. These are the traditional archetypes of men and women in society. However, these views are coming to an end. In the Powder Puff football game girls showed just how aggressive and strong they could be. They proved their strength through their cunning swift moves, and their combative side bursted out through each tackle and interception. One senior who took the initiative was Jordan McAlister. "Powder Puff was so much fun. I'm glad I got a chance to get out on the field and play football just like the guys do. I'm very proud of myself that I made two interceptions although I ran the wrong way on one," said McAlister. On the other side are the men who showed their hidden feminine side by getting a chance to cheerlead. "It was fun being a flyer and it was also great seeing the guys without coordination dance," said Senior Brandon Lockheart. For a day, the men and women proved they could do anything the other could do.

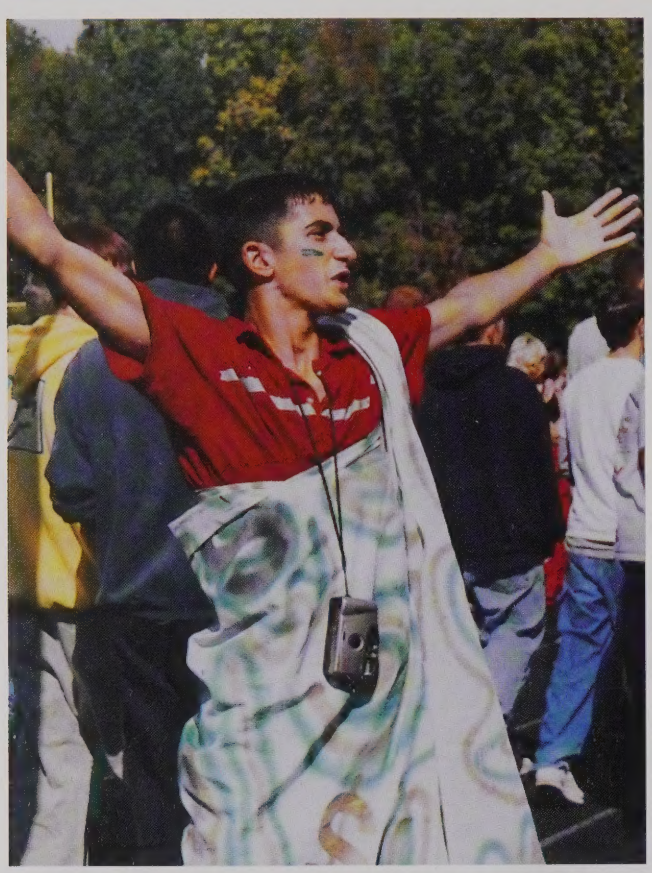
How was your Pep-Rally Experience?

"Even though I wasn't able to be with my friends during Pep-Rally, Cheerleading made it a wonderful and fun experience."

Sophomore Lindsey Dunn

"I think this has been the best Pep-Rally because of the new jumpsuits and the new routine. Holla!"

Senior Sean Southall



Above: Senior Andre Cortbawi stands in front of the student body to cheer on the Seniors. "I think it is a lot of fun to get into the school spirit and the Pep-Rally is the best time for it," said Cortbawi. He really enjoyed being a part of the Pep-Rally.

Top Right: Cavalettes pose for a quick picture with all their Football player dancers. Sophomore Korinna Hundley said, " This year was a little easier because I actually knew what I was doing." The Cavalettes and the Football players dance together every year at Pep-Rally.

Bottom Right: Peter Kraines shows off his school spirit. "You know it was a good Pep-Rally when you lose your voice for a week and Seniors cheer the pants off the other classes," said Kraines. Many students lost their voices due to all their yelling.

Pep-Rally Perfection

livin' up to new traditions

On the last day of Spirit week students filled the stands quickly. Pumped and filled with school spirit each class was in their distinquished color. Freshmen wearing white, sophomores wearing green and juniors wearing black and the good 'ol tradition of seniors wearing Togas. Although, every class stuck with their same class color, the sophomores decided to break the tradition of wearing their gym shirts. "SMAC decided to break a tradition by asking Sophomores to wear green shirts instead of their smelly gym shirts," said Sophomore Emily Gray. That was not the only tradtion broken. This year the Cavalettes, Cheerleaders, Football players and Step Team did not do the Spirit dance. Even without the encouragment of the spirit dance to get everyone up on their feet, the stands were still filled with excitement, enthusiasm and dedication. With the spirit stick right before the students, each class got louder and louder with the help of pom-poms and noise makers. Once again, Seniors run onto the field singing ... "Hey ho seniors in the house!"

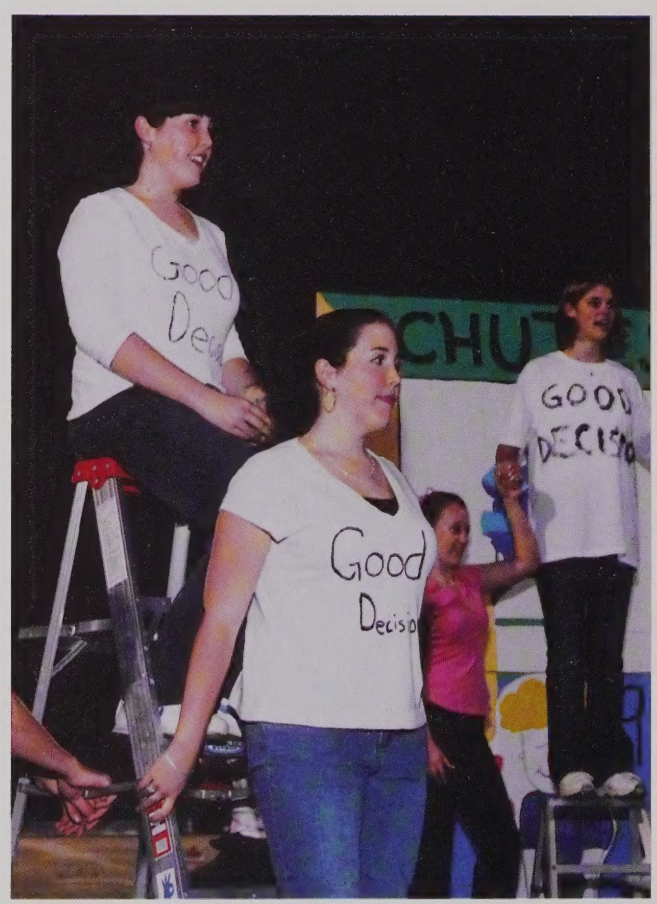
Student's Eye View

"It was fun. I enjoyed working with my friends and winning was awesome. I look forward to next year's Homecoming."

Freshman Eric Earley

"The whole experience was awesome! My dad escorting me out and Keri and Dr. Mayo crowning me was absolutely unforgettable. This definitely made my last Homecoming great!"

Senior Brittany Rogers



Above: Freshmen Amy and Emily Rosko represent good decisions as they participate in the SADD float. "The experience was awesome, but all I could think was, 'I hope I don't fall off the ladder,'" said Amy. The SADD float incorporated good decisions and bad decisions with their Chutes and Ladders board game.

Top right: Junior Daniel Von Schuch, Senior Martin Klaiss, Junior Matt Holt, and Junior Jared Polchinski get down and ready as they prepare for an upcoming play. "The opponents didn't defeat us; the clock did," said Polchinski. The players kept a positive outlook despite the rain.

Bottom right: Senior Lauren Wagner gets her groove on as she dances for the senior float. "It was a great way to start my senior year being dedicated to working on the float," said Wagner. Seniors practiced after school to perfect their routine and worked hard to make their float the best it could be.

homecoming game night is a success

Spirit Week came to a close with the anticipated Homecoming Game. The drizzly night began with the parade of floats, which all carried themes of different board games. Seniors sported the look of horizontal stripes as they rode by in their Monopoly jail cell, while two other seniors were dressed as a die and a Monopoly game piece. The high flying Junior class rolled by with their black and white balloon covered float as they reinvented the intellectual game of Chess. The Sophomores acted out a scene from the popular board game, Clue, as their float passed by the excited crowd. The Freshmen class was "monkeying around" on their Barrel of Monkeys float, which won the title of "Best Float" and proved to be worth all their hard work. Other floats included Battleship, made by German Club, Chutes and Ladders by SADD, and Candyland by Art Guild. The senior float came in a close second place. Each class spent numerous hours developing their floats and worked hard with a crowd pleasing theme. "This was the first year I was heavily involved with the float. We were all really excited about our theme, and I think it showed in our work," said Senior Kayla Burton, who helped create the delicious looking Art Guild float. Despite the rain, the night continued on. A delighted Senior, Brittany Rogers, was crowned Homecoming Queen, and the Marching Band and Color Guard performed during halftime. Although George Wythe defeated the football team 23-32, the good times kept rolling with the night's parade and halftime.

"After dancing, my friends and I were able to take a break and hang out while we played Yahtzee."

Sophomore Jenna Calutti

"Johanna and I went to request a fast song so we could dance with our friends on the dance floor."

Junior Krista Winant

Bottom Right: Sophomore Ashley Judd and Sophomore Greg Edmonds dance to a slow song. "I really enjoyed the different atmosphere and music that was played," said Edmonds. A different theme each dance helps to make this possible.

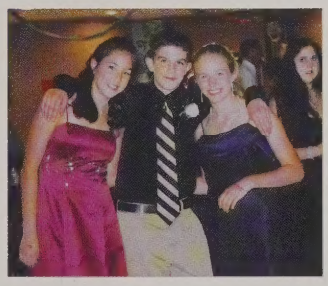
Board Game Bonanza

students play board games in the commons in-between dancing



On October 18, students filled the gym for the annual Homecoming Dance sponsored by the SCA. Related to the board game theme, students were given the option to take a break from dancing and head to the commons to play Chinese Checkers, Yahtzee, and Clue. "Being able to play checkers and take a break in the commons allowed me to cool off before going back on the dance floor," said Junior Erika Pawley. With more people in the commons, the gym was less crowded and students could converse. Inside the gym, the D.J. played various styles of music while the student body danced for hours. "Having a wide variety of music helped us to get our groove on with some of our friends," said Sophomore Danielle Simmons. Country, rap, pop, and rock were among a few of the various styles of music played at the dance. As the night proceeded on, Travis Robinson was crowned Homecoming King by former King, Wayne Huggins. After being crowned, Travis and Homecoming Queen Brittany Rogers danced together. Even though the dance lasted for four hours, students continued to dance with energy until 11:30 when the lights came back on.

Top Right: Heather Zimmerman and Michelle Mellinger partake in the traditional turning of the rings. "I think the ring ceremony is a really great tradition that the school should keep going," said Zimmerman. The turning of the rings is a tradition that is a big part of the ring ceremony.

Center: Several juniors admire each other's rings. Many juniors felt that the rings were a symbol of them being official upperclassmen. The ceremony is the first offical one for juniors.

Bottom Right: A group of junior girls show each other their new class rings. "Showing my ring to all of my friends and seeing theirs was one of the best parts of the night," said Junior Kim Graber. Many students spent a majority of the reception displaying their rings.

Tradition With a Twist

a new personalization option is a big hit with juniors

It's a tradition that for many is one of the major events of high school. Each year the anticipation builds as the night of transition comes closer. The junior class ring ceremony, held on October 8th in the gym, marked the moment when juniors officially became upperclassmen. "It was a good way for the class to come together as a whole," said Junior Krista Winant. The big change this year was a new personalization option that gave juniors the ability to get their names on their rings. This option was an addition to the ones that were availiable in previous years, such as the school crest and symbols representing a student's interest. "It's cool having our names on our rings because we're the first class to do it and it makes the night more personal," said JAC Vice President, Cami Aurioles. The rings were passed out to the juniors in alphabetical order by the junior class and junior advisory council officers. The night concluded with the juniors showing off their new accessories at a small reception, complete with a cake congratulating the juniors on their lastest honor, and the traditional turning of the rings.

Live From Clover Hill

it's Wednesday night . . . six years long and still the laughter sounds strong

Laughter was all that could be heard on Wednesday, February 18, as the funniest actors and actresses stood on stage to present Clover Hill Live, one of the most anticipated performances of the year. "Our skits are a lot of fun, and the crowds love that," said Senior Alex Huss. The audience enjoyed Clover Hill Live so much that it became a sell-out success since its beginning several years ago. With tickets sold in record time, the students who did not have an earlier lunch were at the risk of not being able to see the show. Not surprisingly, Clover Hill Live became increasingly popular as the jokes became funnier and the people more cunning. "Everyone loves Gobstoppers, and Clover Hill Live is like a Gobstopper; it changes colors, lasts a long time, and tastes great," said Senior Vance Barbar. Part of the success depended on the host. Dave Goobic's humor at the beginning of the show set the mood for the night. "Although this is my first time doing this, I enjoyed working with such talented kids, and I would love to do it again," said Goobic. Clover Hill Live was a tradition that started six years ago to get out of the norm and liven up the mood.

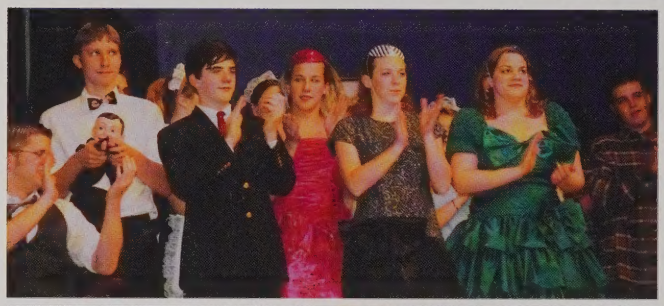
What made this year like no other?

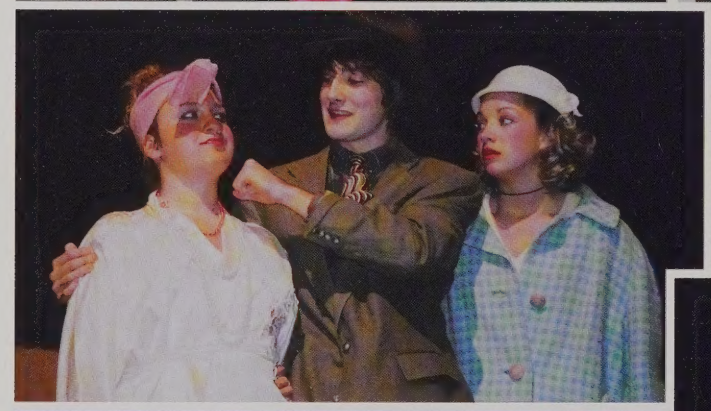
"It was my first lead. There were a whole lot of new people from different grades and I made a lot of new friends."

Senior Kyle Meadows

"It was different than last year because a lot of old people were gone and new people came to fulfill the lead spots."

Senior Graham Todd





Top Left: After four performances, the cast cheers following the last night, while the children in the audience show their fascination with the play. "This year we had so many more children who loved it," said Ginger Gobble. Annie attracted a larger audience than in years before, and a matinee performance was even added because of the popular demand for tickets.

Bottom Left: Seniors Lauren McGrath, Vance Barber, and Lindsey McCray plot revenge on the little orphan Annie. "This play was great. I love to just stand on the stage and see the audience, as they laugh at our consecrations in the play," said Barber. The three made the audience laugh numerous times while singing "Easy Street."

Top Right: Juniors Lindsey Sweetland, Lisa Pitts, and Irene Kuykendall dance to the music of Hooverville. "This scene was really fun because we got to dress up as bums and got to act angry," said Kuykendall. Hooverville was a great scene for the actresses to show off their skills of dance and vocals.

Bottom Right: In the last scene of the play Senior Jessie Elgin and her dog stand on stage for the final song. "It all paid off in the end. Being able to portray a character that I have grown up with was rewarding and hard work," said Elgin. Jessie and Sandy made a great pair in each scene.

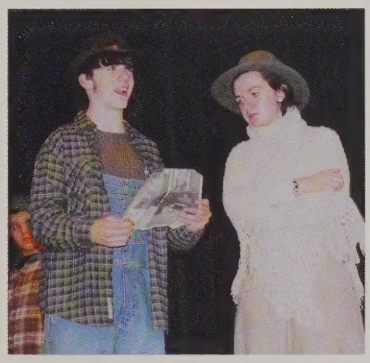
Not Such a Hard Knock Life

the Annie cast came together as a family so life was not so hard knock



What makes something so successful? A large group of people all working together to make the common goal great. That is how the cast of actors felt. There was a family-like environment that allowed for the cast to get through all of the ups and downs they had to deal with while in the production. "I really like how the cast and crew all came together. We are all really there for each other and it makes the play that much better," said Junior Lisa Pitts. There were many new faces that really enhanced the play with their talents. They were able to hang with the more experienced members and with all of the time together they picked up some pointers. "There's a lot of new people causing more diversity. It is nice to see that when the seniors leave there will still be some great talent in future years," said Junior Lindsey Sweetland. The play went so well that every performance was sold out or close to it. One part that no one really expected to happen was when the snow fell at the end of the play. "It was very nice to see the kids play in it. That is when I knew the play was a success," said Director Ginger Gobble.

Eleven males exhibited their multiple talents and dazzling good looks at the Mr. Clover Hill beauty pageant. The show started off with an introductory dance in which all of the contestants participated. The beachwear portion of the competition then followed where the participants astonished the crowd with their creative swimwear. The audience witnessed talents ranging from dangerous stunts to ballet dancing to playing the bongo drums. The formalwear section of the show brought the competition to a close, and it left the audience laughing. The hosts of the pageant also brought added humor to the show, especially Alex Huss and Peter Kraines' rendition of "Roxanne." Although all of the competitors were exceptional, the judges could choose only one winner. At the end of the night, Junior Daniel Clingenpeel was hailed as the school's new Mr. Clover Hill. "When I won Mr. Clover Hill, I felt like Christopher Columbus discovering America," Clingenpeel said.

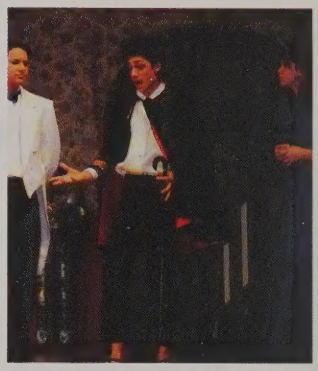
What did you like most about the play?

"I felt the cast was the strongest I've ever performed with. Mrs. Marsh helped us get the characterization right, which led to a really great play."

Sophomore Ryan Johnston

"This play was a good play because it was a classic, and at the same time it's ideas and themes were modern."

Junior Leo Diaz



Top Left: Finally having met the Sycamore family, Mr. and Mrs. Kirby, played by Senior Austin Crispens and Junior Lindsay Sweetland, are taken back by the eccentric family. "It was my first time acting and it was a good feeling to know we did a good job and that it turned out great," said Crispens. Mr. and Mrs. Kirby showed that a family cannot be judged on first appearances and that status is not important to be a good person.

Top Right: Applauding the audience for coming, the Cavalier Players finish up their nights performance by taking a bow at the end of the play. "The play was loads of fun, I loved the people and can't wait to do it again next year," said Sophomore Bryce Hutchinson. Hutchinson played the goofy Ed throughout the play, who was always making music with his instrument.

Bottom Right: Sitting around a table, talking about family, Senior Lindsay McCray and Junior Thomas Saunders act out a scene from the play. "I had a great time, made some good friends, and had an awesome experience acting in the play," said Saunders. The entire cast made the play successful.

You Can't Take It With You

the Cavalier Players take a stunning performance with them

Bigger audiences and a great show proved that Mrs. Marsh's second year directing the spring play was a success. "Mrs. Marsh did a great job at directing this play from the casting to the stage direction. All of the cast and crew clicked well together and drew a great crowd for both performances," said Junior Hailey Black. From the suave Tony Kirby, played by Junior Thomas Saunders, to the quirky Mrs. Sycamore, played by Junior Allison Bodsford, the entire cast and crew put on a show of achievement two nights in a row. "I favored You Can't Take It With You because it is an old broadway comedy that I have seen performed at other high schools and really enjoyed it. I knew that the actors here at school could pull off a great performance," said Drama Teacher Mrs. Marsh. The play was about the daughter, Alice Sycamore, played by Senior Lindsay McCray, of a poor and extremely peculiar family living in an old house in the country. "I think the cast worked really hard, put in a lot of time and effort, and thoroughly enjoyed acting on stage; that led to a great performance," said Junior Lindsay Sweetland. From their success the cast took with them the many memories they made performing the Spring Play.

Did you know...

- Most people preferred Italian food for dinner.
- The most popular dress color was black.
- Most guys decided to rent their tuxedo.
- On average, guys spent anywhere from ten minutes to one hour getting ready.
- Most girls spent at least two hours preparing for prom.

students gather in "Fantasy Land" to dance the night away

On Saturday, May 1st, the Junior Class hosted the annual Junior/Senior Prom at the Holiday Inn Select-Koger Center. Around eight o'clock students in limousines and various cars of different makes and models began to arrive. Although it rained for most of the evening, the rain did not put a damper on the fun. Girls in elegant dresses and guys in a number of different tuxedos soon filled the ballroom. The music that accompanied the students who chose to dance was provided by a local DJ. Most of the dancing took place on the main foor, with refreshments and tables available when students decided to take a breather. At 10:30 pm, everyone gathered around the dance floor to make way for the Prom Court, as well as the announcement of the Prom King and Queen. Senior Drew Harrell was crowned Prom King and Senior Jessie Mustian was crowned Prom Queen. "It's great to be the king. Thank you, thank you very much," said Harrell. The two shared their spotlight dance together to the song "When You Wish Upon a Star." As the dance came to a close, everyone headed over to the Robious Sports and Fitness Center for Post Prom where various games and activities were offered.

And Straight on 'til Morning

after dancing all night, students won prizes and played games at Post Prom

When they were finished dancing, Juniors and Seniors arrived at the Robious Sports and Fitness Complex to spend the wee hours of the morning at Post Prom. Activities that kept students busy included an inflatable volleyball court, a casino room, inflatable boxing, and Dance Dance Revolution. Continually throughout the night, prizes were given away to all those present at Post Prom. Some of the prizes included digital cameras, DVD players, and cash. A grand prize for both classes was also given.The Senior grand prize, won by Brittany Wyman, was six hundred dollars and the Junior grand prize, won by Doug Dietz, was three hundred. "With that much money, I could buy six thousand goldfish," said Wyman. The prizes were separated into junior and senior categories. Prizes such as refrigerators and laundry supplies were given to seniors to help them prepare for college. By the end of the night about thirty thousand dollars worth of prizes had been given away. Post Prom provided a place for students to have a safe, fun night.

Changing Lanes

seniors take charge of the school for a day

The lines of student and faculty were blurred as seniors were given the chance to take over the positions of teachers, administrators, and other staff members throughout the school. Senior Leadership Day was a chance for students to look forward to some fun and relaxation. Students were surprised when they walked into class because the upperclassmen took their positions seriously. They had gone so far as to dressing for their roles. Some students had to do a double take as they saw seniors in school. "When I saw the seniors in their suits it was like they almost blended in with the teachers," said Junior Ronny Nowland. As students assumed the roles of teachers they found out how much work it took. They presented notes, gave lectures, and brought forth new ideas. "Teaching took more effort than I thought it would, but it was still fun yelling at the underclassmen to get back to work," said Senior Ricky Hinebaugh. Although there was much work involved running the school for a day, upperclassmen enjoyed getting away from the regular activites of being a student. Though the day was filled with many responsibilities, seniors still made lasting memories.

senior picnic and pool party

Before graduation all the Seniors look forward to the special events that lead up to the big day. On May 28, Seniors left the Awards Ceremony to have their Picnic and Pool Party. Although the picnic was rained out and had to be inside, Seniors still had a good time in the cafeteria eating and enjoying time with their friends. "Even though we had to have the picnic inside, I still had a really great time just being around my friends and talking to people that I may not see again," said Senior Katie Keene. Following the picnic , the Seniors headed to the Swim and Raquet Club for the Pool Party. By the time the Pool Party began it had stopped raining, and even though it was a cloudy, it did not keep any of the seniors from having a blast. Most seniors laid to soak in some sun while others dared the cold water. "The Pool Party was so much fun and just because it was a litte cloudy out it did not stop anyone from having a blast and trying to work on their tan. I am truely going to miss everyone," said Senior Lauren Shulman. These events gave the seniors an opportunity to be together as a class and enjoy their last weeks before graduation without stress.

A Decade of Memories

"I liked this play because I finally got to break out and play a character that doesn't resemble myself at all: a sad, desperate, pathertic loser who works in a record store when he is 48. Wait a minute, I lied. That's exactly like me... I'm gonna go cry now."

The club members reunited every ten years.

Decades of Fun

experienced seniors produce a successful senior show

Every spring the Drama department comes together to put on one last production known as the Senior Show. The play, The Decade Club, focused on a group of friends graduating high school who promise to reunite every ten years. The cast brought together a number of experienced Cavalier Players. This experience increased the comfort level between actors. "I kissed two girls in this play. Some say I was comfortable, but I believe it was my style that got me through it," said Senior Vance Barber. The fact that the seniors were experienced showed in every aspect of their performance. "The audience was used to seeing most of these students in comedic roles, so watching them in a serious role was surprising," said Drama Director Ginger Gobble. Since it was the last performance for the seniors many of them felt as if the senior show was in a sense, a goodbye. "The end of high school acting is definitely bittersweet. Ending something that has been such a big part of our lives is really hard," said Senior Lauren McGrath. The show ultimately symbolized the culmination of the seniors' high school theatre careers, but it was something that they will remember for decades to come.

A Toast to the Future

seniors gather together to cherish the memories

As the year came to a close the senior class gathered together to attend a banquet and reflect on the past four years. The banquet was held on June 2 at the Holiday Inn Koger Center. It began with a greeting from Dr. Mayo, followed by the class officers giving speeches to their peers summarizing a few memories and wishing the best of luck to the graduates. "Senior Banquet was awesome. It was sad, but good to spend a last night with your friends," said SCA President Travis Robinson. After Lauren McGrath spoke and gave a toast, students ate dinner, which was followed by the announcement of the Senior Superlatives. Each superlative was given to one boy and one girl based on the votes of the senior class. Awards such as Hollywood Bound and Most Athletic were presented to the winners. Following the Senior Superlative presentation, the highly anticipated Senior Slide Show left many people laughing and many crying. "Seeing the slide show made the end of high school seem realistic, but it was such a great presentation," said Senior Miranda Wilhelm. The ceremony ended with the distribution of the Senior Last Wills and Testaments.

Good luck class of 2004

Forever Changed

graduation provides seniors with a foundation for future successes

On June 13, the Senior Class of 2004 watched with anticipation as Scott Wiley, President of the Senior Class, opened the Graduation Ceremony with a few words of wisdom. "Tonight is a milestone among the greatest in our lives," said Wiley. The commencement was held on a Sunday evening at the Siegel Center and was attended by both family and friends of the graduates, all of whom were present to watch the seniors come together one last time. While Catherine Worsham, the representative for the Math and Science High School, spoke of humorous high school memories, Salutatorian Jordan Wall focused on the changes to come. "Graduation is a time of old endings and new beginnings...the only sure thing is that everything is changing," said Wall. Courtney Rodeheaver, the Valedictorian, asked her fellow classmates to look forward to their futures. "Let us imagine our future as blank pages on which we can write our dreams," said Rodeheaver. When the speeches came to a close, the seniors walked across the stage and received their diplomas, bringing their high school years to a close. As the ceremony concluded, with diplomas in hand, the graduates exited the building and took the first steps of the rest of their lives.

With new team mottoes, a new coach, and a new kicker, th Varsity football team has returned. Employing encouraging sl gans such as "Cavaliers as One," the players enhanced the group unity by working together as a team. With the addition Coach Mickey Swartz and kicker Senior David Stannard, th team succeeded in defeating Prince George in the first game the season. "The team worked diligently together in the of season, using the previous rough season as positive motivation said Stannard. Their motivation? "New year, new attitude." Th team increased the inspirational aspect of the group through th frequent use of the chants. By practicing in groups after schoo players sought new tactics to defeat their foes. "As a team, w have grown and developed a sense of worth, will to win, and beli in one another. Because of this growth, we are unwilling to quit an therefore become our best," added Senior Ricky Hinebaugh. Wi the aspiration to crush the competition, the Cavaliers focused o the desire to win and increasing the inspiration of the team as whole.

While most students were sleeping at 7:30 on their summer mornings, devoted Freshmen and Junior Varsity players were already running sprints and perfecting plays for their upcoming season. Preparations commenced in mid-August as players began developing skills on and off the field. "Summer practices allow us to get to know each other and grow stronger together as a team. No single player can win a game; the whole team has to work together in order to accomplish anything," said Sophomore Chris Deck. Both Freshman and Junior Varsity players illustrated relationships with each other and gave remarkable team efforts at both practices and games. Coches Billy Jones, Ricky Brown, Chad Chisom, and David Zyglocke initiated longer summer practices, extra conditioning, and an off-season running test in hopes of establishing successful and more aggressive teams. The coaches' strategies proved victorious as both teams had multiple wins. Through both summer and fall, Freshmen and J.V. teams demonstrated that practice does, in fact, make perfect.

The golf team began preparing for success before the school year began. While most students were still enjoying the carefree days of summer, the boys were hitting the range to perfect their skills and prepare for another season by early August. Playing before school started allowed the boys more time to practice and gave them more time to work on certain elements of their golf game. Throughout the season, the golf team put in many hours on the green in group practice and individual practice. "Individual practice gave me more confidence in my golfing," said Freshman James Jones. Though golfers practiced independently, their group efforts at practice and matches led to multiple successes. Although many students are not aware of the effort the players must put into practice and perfecting skills because of their tucked away location, their performance shows their practice and hard work has payed off. Through their diligence and long hours of work, the golf team has proven this season that they truly have gone above and beyond their call of duty.

With such skilled athletes to choose from, it is no wonder why both JV and Varsity Men's Volleyball increased the size of their teams. The great number of promising and well-experienced players brought strength and talent to yet another season. Even though there was a bigger team, Varsity found ways to unify their group. Traditions of wearing green, gold and white striped headbands, along with bouncing pregame huddles, kept the boys hyped up as a team. "Rituals and being close friends helped our team succeed," said Senior David Meador. With more players to deal with, it was especially important that the team stayed in tune with each other throughout the games. "We rely on every player instead of depending on just one dominant player," said returning Varsity player Junior Chase Grinnell. Since most of the boys played volleyball together outside of school, their ability to successfully work as a unit to defeat their opponents continued. After winning the Regional title, the Varsity team advanced to States. No matter what changed, the Men's Volleyball teams' confidence and determination led them to victory.

With amazing teamwork and a more positive attitude, the girl's volleyball team completed the season with success. Having only three returning seniors, eight juniors, and one sophomore, the older girls on the team set good examples and a good work ethic for the rest of the squad. "I think we were always improving and working together," said Junior Sammy Contomanolis. Even though the team had some of the same traditions, like running in a circle and diving in the center of their side of the court, it proved to opponents that they were unified as one team. "This is the most enthusiastic team I have ever coached. Their hard work and eagerness to learn have paid off by surprising some teams in our district," said head coach Ms. Herzing. The JV squad also had some of their own traditions like huddling in a circle for a pre-game talk. With cheers and pump up slogans, such as "Hyped", all the girls came together for another triumphant year.

new training schedule prompts success

Katie Raney

Griffin Senning

Caitlin Schrider

Training has always been an important part of cross-country, but this season the teams' coaches, Chris Averill and Gail Kline, wanted to try something different. Therefore, they decided on a new training schedule. This, however, was a challenge for both the men and women's teams who were used to the type of schedule used in previous years. "The goal of the new training schedule was to prevent the legs from breaking down by making them stronger in the beginning of the season," said Coach Averill. The new schedule dealt with loading and unloading the muscles through a gain in mileage every week for three consecutive weeks. Once the third week was over, the cycle started up again. "We train hard for about three months, then try to peak at Districts and Regionals," said Junior Brad Bell. Throughout the season, the new training program was put to the test, but the annual District and Regional meets was what it all came down to. With both the men and women's teams placing high in their district, as well as in their region, the new training schedule proved to be a success.

Coach Donna Stables has been leading the Field Hockey team for nine years. This past season she celebrated her one hundredth win. "I try to get to know the players and the team as a group and try to find something to motivate the team that suites their personalities. I also try to share past experiences of myself or other teams so they know it is okay to make mistakes," said Stables. Her style of coaching stresses team unity and not individuals. "She is a very determined coach with the best intentions for the team. She helped us play with unity regardless of the fact that the majority of the players were new," said Junior Natalie Alberg. This year the varsity team lost eleven seniors. Only six starters returned, but the girls still responded well. The Junior Varsity team had a similar scene. They lost twelve of their players to Varsity. After finishing up the season, JV was third in the district, while Varsity placed second.

The Lady Cavs tennis team had a winning season, and they were named District Champions. Such success was made possible by hard work at practice so that each individual could improve their game. With this training, the team had a strong base to build from thoughout the season. "I think that as a team we all improved greatly from last year," said Sophomore Christina Giaimo. Besides hard work, strong team friendships made the teams' success possible. "This year was great because I got to reconnect with all my friends who moved up to high school and left me in middle school," said Sophomore Danielle Simmons. The combined talents, strong work ethics, and friendships also allowed for the team to attain their goal of beating Midlothian, which had not been done in three years. Overall, the efforts of all the teammates made the season a success.

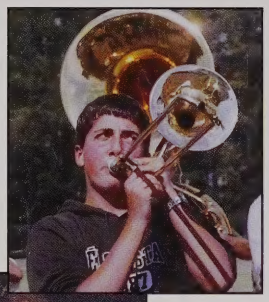
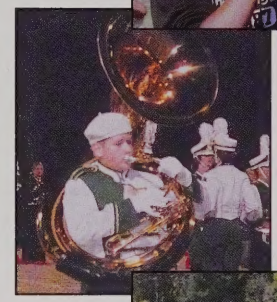
Pumpin' Up the Crowd

it's up to the marching band to keep the fans on their toes



Brandon Teller



Brent Basham

Philip Lekavich

Jump. Scream. Do the wave. The marching band tried their hardest to get the crowd involved. Although it looked really easy to the crowd to wear a uniform, carry an instrument, and march around, it was a lot harder than that. Marching band camp was held during the last weeks of August. Even though it seemed like torture to stand out in the hot sun and play instruments for several hours, "when you finally get to perform for a real audience and you hear them clapping and cheering for you, it's all worth it," said Sophomore Marlee Shupe. The marching band bonded together during the long practices. "I like marching band because of the friendships and the unity within the group," said Junior Jillian Lyttle. However, this unity also applied to Mr. Conley, the band director. "He knows how to have fun, but he also knows when it's time to work," said Sophomore Margaret Pollard. His creative mind allowed for the smooth flow of its routine. "Mr.Conley is an effective band teacher because he can see problems with his ears," said Sophomore Katie Puckett. From the way they looked on the field and got the crowd worked up, it sure seemed like it.

A Change in Color

youth brings new edge to the colorguard

Tracy Navratil

Samantha Salmon

With over half the team new to the colorguard, including a couple of upperclassmen, performances proved to be challenging. Beacuse most of the team had not learned the routines, the team had to have extra practices in order to make up for time missed due to inclement weather. The additional practices helped the team make sure their routines were just right. Also, this year the team added an additional majorette, Sophomore Emily Myers. Having two majorettes was a first for the team. "I enjoy twirling with Lindsay Jones and this year we have become better friends because of being majorettes," said Sophomore Emily Myers. Even though the team had to incorporate these new changes, their efforts paid off as they took first place in their first competition at Meadowbrook High School in early October. Also in October, the team received superior ratings on their performance at the VBODA State Marching Band Festival. "We worked really hard and it all paid off when we received first place," said Junior Dani Halbleib. With extra practices and new people, the season proved to be a success.

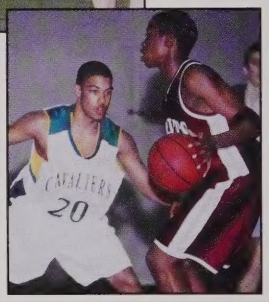
younger players develop team skills

Gerry Kerry

Nick Ott



Bill Redman

Because many teammates had graduated, it was, at first, a difficult transition for those who remained. Nonetheless, with combined efforts, the team was able to quickly learn how to work together. "We have improved our weaknesses since the beginning of the year. The team has come together well since we first started," said Junior Tim Clark. While the team went their separate ways off the court, they were able to join together and show their team support during the game. "We have been strong this season with new skills and changes," said Sophomore Garret Hinden. With a younger team the underclassmen were able to not only learn from their coach but also from the older, more experienced players. The returning players worked hard to come together with the new members and encourage them to do their best throughout the season. After many long practices and games the Boys Varsity Basketball Team ended their season with a positive outlook for the future.

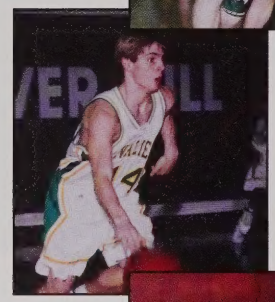
teams take on challenges of their new season

Eric Curtis



George Herbert

Tanner Kramer

The boys Freshmen and Junior Varsity teams had a challenge to overcome. With their coaches not teaching at school, they really had to bond as a team to play well and win. "There are definately some disadvantages to not having our coach available when the team needs him. It was much harder to strategize for upcoming games, but we pulled it off as a team to make the season amazing," said Freshman Kyle Burhop. The boys did not let the situation affect how they played at practice and during games. Coach Carr, the varisty coach, helped out when Coach Reid and Coach Wagner could not be there. The boys believed that this was a very good building year, and they enjoyed playing for the teams. Furthermore, because they did not have their coaches at school, practice time became more valuable when it came to team-coach bonding. Overcoming their challenge the boys turned to one another for needed playing tips and advice.

With no senior players on the Womens Varsity Basketball Team, the young bloods proved themselves by finishing with a strong season. Having a better record than the previous year, the womens team really showed that they came to compete. "I feel like our team has clicked from the begining and no matter what grade you were in everyone was treated the same," said Freshman Grace Cuenin. Before each game the team would gather in the center of the court to say a prayer, followed by a special cheer to show the teams unity. This was just one of the teams' bonding moments. Other moments included team gatherings and pasta parties which made the pressure of competing a little less intense. "The season was successful from the aspect of the teams youth. We had no seniors and depended on a core of sophomores and freshmen. The future looks very bright," said Head Coach James Wahrman. The final season record was 8 wins and 14 loses. The youth of the players and the teams strong camaraderie produced a successful season for the womens basketball team.

Katy Gibbons

Sarah Vincent

Nina Ternate

Getting new traditions has united the Freshmen and JV Girls Team to be a stronger force. Their new unison was due to the time spent together practicing, going to games, and celebrating. These occassions caused them to become a second family to one another. Strength came from many places but mainly from the support of others. The freshmen team and the JV team gained their support and created bonds by staying after on game days to walk to Ukrops. They supported each other and gave advice while eating at the Ukrops cafe. "We get to know the people on the team because we spend so much time together. We became really close," said Freshmen Jerica Beninson. Not only did the JV team bond by eating meals together, but they also occasionally had parties as a reward for a hard week of practice. "We have a lot of fun at the parties and it brings us closer as a team," said Sophomore Emily Naret. The time and fun the girls spent with each other unified them as a powerful team.

With new teams determined to improve their techniques the wrestling team lit up each match. Senior Captains Casey Smith, Ben Cuenin, and Steven Davis led the Varsity team to victory in the district competition. Many JV and Varsity players practiced during the off-season to strengthen their moves as well as advance their defensive skills. "We've really had a great season because a lot of guys have really stepped up their effort. Winning the District title was a great way for us to finish off the year," said Senior Josiah Noble. With an increased level of intensity both teams were able to defeat the James River wrestlers. Additionally, new restrictions were placed on members to limit the weight lost before matches. "Because wrestling is one of the hardest sports, a sense of comrodery develops among the team that extends beyond the sport. It also builds self-confidence because when you win its all because of you," said Junior Jack Wilson. Striving to improve their game, wrestlers were able to reflect upon their hard work as a team.

While some athletes took the winter off, the participants of Indoor Track were working hard to stay in shape and gain a jump-start on the spring season to come. Though not all members were serious runners, Indoor Track attracted other off-season athletes as well, such as baseball and soccer players. These athletes were provided with a chance to remain fit and get ready for the upcoming spring sports season through both running and weight lifting, though they did not have to participate in any serious meets or races. For the competitive runners, "polar bear meets", outdoor races held at some of the local high schools, and larger races which were held at colleges and other indoor arenas, were offered. Both provided a chance to improve times and compete during the cold winter months. "Training and competing during the winter helps to keep me in shape between the cross-country and track seasons," said Junior Jayme Sobeck. Even though the reasons for participating differed, Indoor Track provided everyone with a chance to stay fit throughout the winter.

While other teams practiced on the field, the claps and stomps of the step team could be heard throughout the hallways. Equipped with new red jumpsuits in place of the old blue uniforms, the group listened to the suggestions of their sponsor Mrs. Pat Brashears and focused on working in unison. "The new uniforms gave the team's look a twist and added flavor to our traditional style," said Senior Leslie Lynn. Steppers added a dance to the pep rally performance to the song "Get Low" that made the crowd "wiggle with it" in their seats. After losing most members of the team because of graduation, the team worked tirelessly to prepare new members for the rigorous shows. "Although we had our share of obstacles, we focused more on unison and put our differences behind us," said Junior Allyson Hix. The group labored three times a week to harmonize their entire sound and resolve minor flaws in their presentation. They received third place in the State Fair Step Competition under the leadership of Senior Sean Southall and Junior Krista Winant.

It's different because it's like a role reversal. I've been just a member, so now it's strange to be a captain.
~Junior Krista Winant

How long have you been on the step team?
Three years.

What is your favorite part of being on the team?
The diversity of people.

What advice do you have for future captains?
Be patient, and try to be equal toward everyone.

STEP TEAM: Alyse Adams, Courtney Bush, Nora Chatmon, Leah Copeland, Heather Curtis, Jessica DuVall, Kim Graber, Kendra Grinnage, Chris Halbleib, Antonio Harris, Jessica Harris, Allyson Hix, Alexis Kitchen, Christine Kuykendall, Leslie Lynn, Claire Madden, Robyn Parrot, Toni Parrot, Lisa Peou, Shaunte Reaux, Vanessa Remmers, Johanna Sakponou, Sean Southall, Kendall Snyder, Christina Villarreal, Krista Winant.

The team practices a new introduction in the hallway for the basketball game. "During performances you gain a rush and the crowd doesn't exist," said Senior Leah Copeland. Steppers seated in the stands walked down and joined together on the court during half-time.

How long have you been on the step team?
Three years.

What is your favorite part of being on the team?
The rewarding results from our hard work.

What advice do you have for future captains?
Don't let them quit...push them to their limits and don't let up.

Being captain is hard because you have to know how to balance being their friend outside of practice and being their leader during practice.

A Jump Above the Rest

cheerleaders prove nothing can take away their spirit

Julie Spence

Kelsey Sinkler

Jessica Smith

Cheerleading was more than cute smiles and back handsprings. Not only did it take determination and cooperation, but cheerleaders had to have a positive attitude. It was all about accepting changes, and though some were difficult, never once did the cheerleaders lose their spirit. "Though there were many hardships, the team stayed together, and we worked hard to keep smiles on our faces," said Sophomore Megan Cox. Unlike previous years, freshmen had an opportunity to join the Varsity squad. In addition, many of the J.V. cheerleaders were advanced to Varsity; thus, the J.V. team was left to find new members. At the beginning of the season, the loss of Brittany Grenier to a gruesome car accident brought both pain and sorrow to the squads, yet their smiles never once disappeared. Nothing could get a crowd hyped like a great cheer, and the cheerleaders definitely knew how to get the fans pumped. Despite all odds, they were simply a jump above the rest.

Rachel Hoagland and Chelsea Sligh

This year was slightly different due to the loss not only we went through, but everyone else also. The support from each other helped us to become closer as a squad and made it easier to perform.
~Senior Brianne Collins

What is your most memorable moment of the year?
My most memorable moment was Senior Night. It was hard given the circumstances, but also surreal because I'd been looking forward to it for so long.

How has the squad been affected by both the loss and gain of teammates throughout the year?
The dynamics are different, true, but it gave us an edge by being able to teach the newer girls exactly what to do.

The team managed to overcome the event and continued the season with a valuable memory of her commitment and contributions to the squad.

What is your most memorable moment of the year?

When we won District Semi-Finals, it was a very exciting time for us. We had never been more proud of how far we had come.

How has the squad been affected by both the loss and gain of teammates throughout the year?

Our seniors last year were very skilled and an asset in our stunting abilities. Having two new freshmen flyers meant we had to work twice as hard. It's been a challenge, but all our work has paid off.

It has been very difficult for the team to get back to where we are, but we know that now we are doing this for someone else besides ouselves.

The girls worked extremely hard preparing for the new season. Going to camp was a fesh experience for the team. In just three days at the EDA camp held at William and Mary, they were ready to take on the football season. "Being on Cavalettes has taught me the value of teamwork. This year we have really bonded as a team and that has helped us to have a productive year. I have had so much fun dancing with you girls this year and I will miss you so much," said Senior Ashley Gordon. Coming out of camp with nine new dances put the girls ahead. Not only did they emerge with new routines, but they also left William and Mary with the honor of being camp champions and improving their skills. With all of their team work the young ladies were able to place third in both their jazz and pom routines at the annual Manchester Invitational Dance Competition. Going to camp was not the only new thing for the team this year. They also held the first all State Dance Competition.

With the Men's Varsity Soccer team including eight seniors, there was an increased sense of leadership on the field. Four of these Seniors received scholarships to play Division I soccer for different colleges after graduation. In addition, Senior Matt Ayotte was named the District and Regional Player of the Year. While Junior Varsity Coach David Seibert was a new and beneficial addition to the soccer program. Meanwile Varsity Coach Mike Anderson continued to be a valuable leader and was awarded Regional Coach of the Year. The boys were not only passionate about playing the game, but they also enjoyed spending time together. "We worked well together, and our team unity led us to success. Though winning was our goal, I think that the friendships that were built amongst the players was an accomplishment within itself," said Junior Ryan Bauer. Warming up to "We Are The Champions" continued to be a tradition while going to Wendy's after games became a new one. With such a desire to unite, the Varsity team sucessfully played their way into being ranked as one of the best soccer teams in the state. After achieving the titles of District and Regional Champions and reaching the State Semi-Finals tournament, the senior players left behind a victorious legacy.

Ashley Seldon

This year, both the girls J.V. and Varsity soccer teams adopted new coaches. Mrs. Kylie Parrot was in charge of the J.V. squad, while Ms. Jamie Bird took over the Varsity squad. Both teams struggled in adapting to a new formation, but, in the end, it was proven successful. "Stepping into the position of head coach for the team was overwhelming and intense; however, they made me feel very welcome. It is rare to find a team so dedicated and passionate about a sport, and I feel fortunate to coach such a successful, motivated group of girls," said Coach Bird. Coach Parrot showed achievement when the J.V. squad ended their season with a 6-2 record in district play. The Varsity squad had specific goals that they wanted to meet throughout the season such as: focusing on the game at hand, playing with all their hearts, and finally, reaching their ultimate goal of competing in the state tournament again. "We overcame a lot of diversity in the beginning, but not only did it make our play better but our bond stronger," said Junior Ashley Seldon. The Varsity girls squad placed first in the District, first in the District Tournament, and fell in the quarterfinal round of Regionals. The Varsity season ended strong with hopes of advancing further next year.

the Varsity men's tennis team steps up for success

Matt Hickey

Janek Nikicicz

Focusing significantly on conditioning during practices, the Men's Varsity Tennis Team attempted new ways of creating a stronger team. The season consisted of tougher practices and more conditoning, but also many new friendships formed within the team. With many hard workouts, teammates turned to each other for ways of making practices fun and enjoyable. The boys, following the instruction of their coach, Noah Marlier, lead themselves to multiple triumphs throughout the season. "I was very proud of each of the players' effort and enthusiasm. This was a very young, but talented team, and I expect nothing but great things from them in the future," said Marlier. With almost every player returning next year competition for the district title will be open for the team, and the brotherhood shared between them will be even stronger, creating a familiar atmosphere. The comraderie allowed the boys to encourage one another both at practices and matches, and compete to the best of their abilities. The season provided a solid foundation for next year's success.

Take Me Out

varsity and junior varsity players bring team unity to every game

George Herbert

Matthew Tiller

Brandon Clayton

Being on the baseball team gave Varsity and Junior Varsity players a whole new meaning to the word "family." The boys on the teams were able to form a strong brotherhood over the many years they played together. This experience also gave the team the ability to obtain a close chemistry with each other on and off the field. "This year has been a great season. We maintained our composure and came together for some great wins. It was an excellent year for team unity," said Sophomore Michael Creed. By cooperating as a team, the players were able to predict each other's moves during the games as well. However, even though many of the boys formed these bonds, new teammates were still able to find their niche in the tightly knit team. New players were able to become part of the team's "family" and also bring many new ideas to the game. Coach Lowery was able to keep this closeness among the team and has shown his ability by winning District Coach of the Year. By sharing strong relationships, the boys have proved themselves successful through their multiple victories including going all the way to State Competition.

Stacked with fresh players and a returning coach, the Junior Varsity and Varsity softball teams brought a different game to the field. With the JV team lead by Coach Judy Koscinski, the group added eight eighth grade members to the team and worked to follow the example set by Varsity members, lead by Coach Shelly Herzing. Team captains Seniors Jessica McCandless and Jessie Mustian guided the players during two- hour practices and helped the team set out their objectives in a pre-season goal list. "As a team our hard work and determination has paid off, allowing us to get some big wins and accomplish some of our goals," said Senior Megan Hale. By using their latest pitcher Freshman Elizabeth Peek, the team placed winning the district tournament as their greatest long-term goal. Directed by captains Taylor Muniz and Hannah Thornton, the JV members followed a similar suit, becoming more focused and enhancing offensive capabilities. Whether encouraging fellow players through cheers or working on the next play, the teams showed they could pull together to defeat their competition.

Throughout the outdoor track season, every team member did what they could to contribute to to the team and its success, whether it was through running, jumping, or throwing the shot put or discus. However, the abundance of senior members this season proved to be crucial in contributing to the team's success, for they helped out the team by providing a sense of leadership. For example, they led the team in stretches, warm-ups and cool-downs, as well as provided a sense of guidance to their younger teammates. This, in turn, brought the team closer as a whole, helping to lead them in various team victories. "Being a senior on the team was cool because it helped me realize how important it is to set a good example," said Senior Brian Nichols. Although the seniors contributed greatly to the team's success, the other members also played a big part. "Everyone encouraged one another to keep working hard, even through the strenuous workouts," said Junior Nichole Pulkowski. In the end, no contributions went unnoticed, causing everyone to help in leading the team to its success.

Summer Lovin'

Left: Juniors Maddie Woods and Lauren Parker pose for the camera. "We always go to the Outer Banks over the summer," said Parker. The two spent one week there in July.

Right: In London, Juniors Ryan Sisk and Maggie Noe stand in front of Buckingham Palace. "I usually just go to the beach over the summer," said Noe. They visited Sisk's uncle while they were travelling.

After the school year ended, students were released to spend their summers in whatever way they chose. Some stayed at home and spent time with their friends, others went on vacations throughout the three month break, and a few went away from home for the entire summer. However the time away from school was spent, students were sure to enjoy themselves. They relaxed, went to the beach, visited their families, and had fun until it was time to go back for the next year of school.

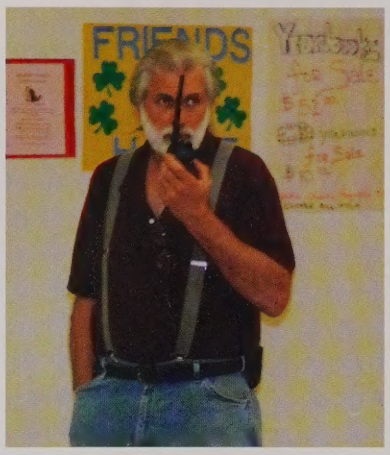
Behind The Scenes



Many people were not aware of the work it took to keep our school clean and functioning each day. Not only did the staff include teachers and administrators, but also a custodial staff, cafeteria staff, facalities manager, resource officer, security staff, school nurse, social worker, and psychologist.Each person on the staff put multiple hours of work into the school. Consequently, without these crucial persons the school would not have been able to function.

Bridget Manasco

Left: Custodian Mr. Pollard cleans the cafeteria after students are done eating lunch each day.

Right: Faculty Manager, Mr. Mines says his favorite part of working as a part of the staff is, "getting to know the students and sharing information that may have a positive impact on their lives."

Living It Up!

On any normal Friday afternoon, students thought of all the possibilities that the weekend would bring. Places like Commonwealth 20 and the new malls were just some of the hang-outs where groups of friends could get together. "Going out on the weekends helps us forget about our worries and relieves stress," said Sophomore Melany Krausse. Although the time was short, it made the duties of school seem less overwhelming and gave the students something to look forward to.

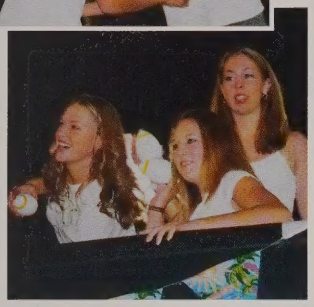
FAC



The Freshman Advisory Council (FAC) consisted of a small group of ninth graders that represented their class. They successfully worked together on all of the Homecoming activities even though it was their first high school event. All of their hard work paid off when FAC won first place for the Homecoming float. FAC also volunteered at a soup kitchen for a service project.

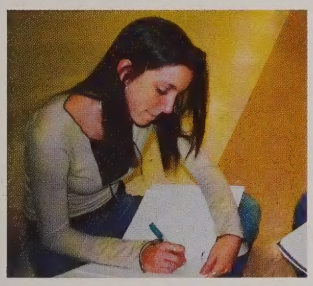
Was it difficult being President of FAC since this is the first year of high school for everyone in the club?

"Not really because everybody participated equally, and we had a lot of fun together."

Esther Kraines

SMAC



The Sophomore Advisory Council, more commonly known as SMAC, was composed of class officers and a group of spirited tenth graders. The council was in charge of the sophomores' participation in the the spirit week activities as well as the class's community service project. The club also went out into the community and donated their time at a local homeless shelter.

What do you feel is the most important aspect of SMAC?

"The teamwork. Without everybody cooperating and working together, nothing would be accomplished as efficently as they are."

Change is Good

Mr. Cunningham decided to become a full-time administrator after trying it out at a summer school. As an administrator, he made productive changes in the school including developing new programs to allow for a smooth transition for new and transfer students. Another program was created to encourage students to excel in academics. Along with developing new programs to improve the school, he also enjoyed interacting with students and staff on a daily basis.

Martha Kim

OFF To Work We Go

Some students find high school challenging enough, but others decide to take on the responsiblity of a part time job. Their reasons for working are varied, but all appreciate the money they earn for their efforts. "I like my job; it's new and exciting, and it helps me pay for my car," said Junior Fegan Hewitt. Although the responsiblities of a job can become stressful in a student's already busy life, most still enjoy working.

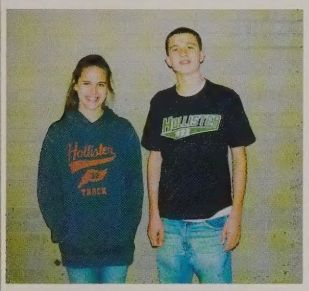
Fab Fashion Finds...



There were many new fashion finds with two new major malls opening in the area. Many of the fashions throughout the school came from the variety of new stores in the malls. One store providing trendy clothes for both guys and girls was Hollister. For the girls, some other fashions were 80's shoulder shirts, scarves, corduroy jackets, and stilettos. The guys fashions included corduroy jackets, belt buckles, shaggy hair, and beanies. Although fashion changes from year to year, these fashions were here to stay at our school. ▶ Jennifer Montrose

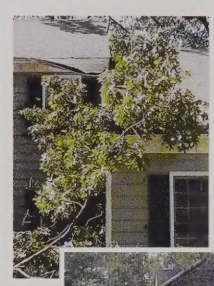
The Master of Disaster



The regular school year offered two large breaks from school work and early mornings, Winter Break and Spring Break. But what happens when a break comes that no one expects? That was the case when Hurricane Isabel hit on September 18 bringing much damage along with her. Power outages and fallen trees were numerous, taking days and weeks to repair and causing schools to be closed for over a week. "My power was off for seven days. I felt like I was on Survivor, and my mom said that I would be the first one kicked off the island," said Senior Gianna Tennise Thomas. Hurricane Isabel was a first time experience for many students and families.

Right: Some of the damage caused by Hurricane Isabel included smashed car tops and windows.

Help Is Here

You probably saw them around, coming into classes with passes in hand. They were the student aides. Although it was hard work, the students saw the opportunity as a break from the normal curriculum. "With having a full schedule and really tough classes to prepare myself for the college experience, being an aide allows me to relax and learn skills that will stick with me," says Junior Lindsey Bowman. Their job consisted of delivering passes, answering phones, looking up schedules, and helping give the staff a break.

And Now, Our Feature Presentation

Whether it was escaping a reality or just a form of entertainment, many students resorted to renting a flick or grabbing some friends and heading for the big screen. Movies proved to be a popular way for students to relax; a good comedy or drama helped kids unwind and motivate for the next week of school. Movies were entertainment at its best, and something that all students could enjoy.

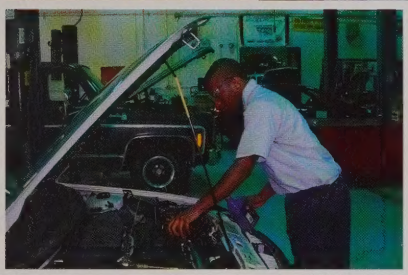
Tech it out

Left: Seniors Will Gregg, Matt Stvartak, Christina Blackwell, and Junior Kirsten Carpenter prepare a dish in Culinary Arts class. "This class has helped me value the art of cooking and has opened me up to what I'd like to do with my life as far as college," said Gregg. Throughout the year the students exerimented with many different recipies.

Right: During their Dental Assisting class, Junior Dana Carter applies floride on Senior Melissa Bowen's teeth. "Denistry is something I've always been interested in, and the class made a great insight on whether or not I want to continue with this field," said Bowen. The class had many advantages to the students without any sort of payment.



Left: Junior Tron Miles attempts to fix a car in his automotive class. "My experience at the Tech Center has been gratifing. I know the information I have learned here will help me in the future," said Miles. The class learned how to paint cars and replace damaged parts.

The Chesterfield Technical Center offered students elective courses that were not offered at their home school, including classes in automotive, information technology, construction/ manufaturing, health and social services, and personal services. Students attended the Tech Center according to the alternate -day schedule. After first period, the students rode the bus to the Technical Center and stayed there for the rest of the day until dismissal to return to Clover Hill. The students that went to the Tech Center recieved many types of training in areas such as techincal writing, computer application, critical thinking, problem solving, and teaming. Along with the many educational advantages of attending the Tech Center, Clover Hill students got to interact with other students from nine different high schools in Chesterfield County.

The start of the team began with thirteen students playing roller hockey in the neighborhood of Hampton Park. Soon after, the boys connected into a league with teams of students from Thomas Dale, Midlothian, and Manchester high schools. The league played games twice a week at a rink in Chesterfield. Even though the team was not affiliated with the school, the games attracted many fans.

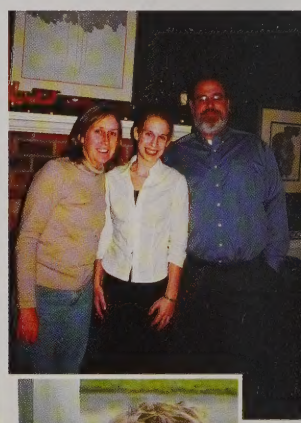
Model Behavior

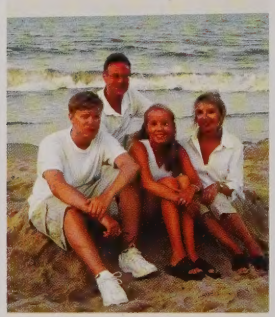
Who is your role model?
Family Member	58%
Other	20%
Actor or actress	12%
Political Figure	1%
Sports Star	1%
Friend	1%

Many people have someone that they look up to. It is a person with desirable qualities that inspires others. These characteristics may include a sports accomplishment, wisdom, or possessing courage. "My role model is Tiger Woods because he is one of the best golfers in the world, and I would love to be able to play like him someday," said Freshman James Jones. So whether this person is an actor, athlete, political figure or a family member, each person has someone that they look up to: a role model.

Lauren Boehnlein



Left: Junior Christine Berg and her brother hang out at Homecoming. "My brother is my role model because he is genuine and he stands up for what he believes in," said Berg. This was an example showing that a brother and sister can get along.



Above: Junior Rachel Rogers and her mom spend time together at the beach. "My mom is my role model because she was very successful in her music career and I might want to follow in her footsteps one day," said Rogers. Many students said that their parents were their role models.

Why did you participate in JAC?

"I wanted to be a part of my junior year; I want to make a difference."

Heather Curtis

What is JAC all about?

"We plan the functions for the year and have a hand in the community."

Colleen Marino

Why is JAC important to you?

"JAC is a way for me to personally connect with my classmates. It gives us a common goal to work for as a group."

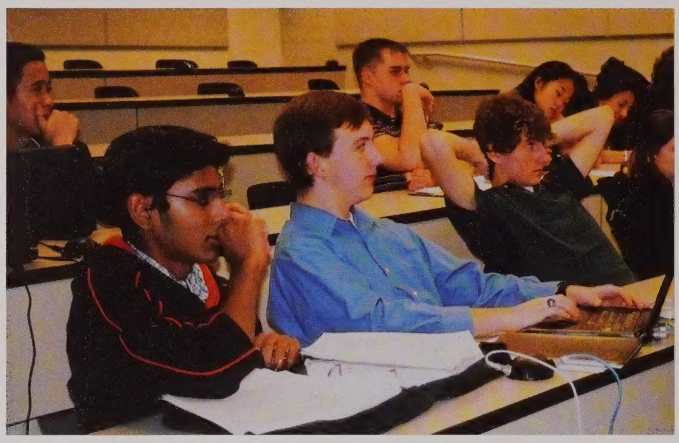
Below: Juniors Vinod Kondragunta, Matt Roy, and Nathan Day take notes during history class. "The fast internet connection made it easy to use our own computer," said Kondragunta. Students were allowed to bring laptops to class.



Right: In english class Juniors Jessie Goodman and Jeff Beall give a presentation. "The Vizy Cam is really cool," said Beall. The college setting offered different technology for students to use.

Math and Science Juniors spend the first part of their day at John Tyler

The Mathematics and Science Program within the school is a high school all its own. Students have to apply to get in and only a select few are accepted. In addition to being challenged academically, after entering the school, students are able to achieve a higher standard of learning. Because only a few students are allowed into the school, everyone knows one another in each class. The relationships among the students allow for a more relaxed and comfortable learning environment.

Due to the overcrowding problem, the entire Junior class in Math/Science was required to go to John Tyler Community College for class. For the first two periods of their day the Juniors coped with college students. School started a half hour earlier for them, but they got to go out to lunch if they wanted to on the trip back to Clover Hill. Instead of having a first period every day, they had a fourth and fifth period every day when they got back to school. After getting used to the new schedule, students were able to appreciate the facilities available to them.

Top: Freshman Meredith Carpenter listens to a class discussion. "They let you express your opinion and hear what others have to say and they are a nice break from class," said Carpenter. Math and Science students often held socratic seminars.

Taking Care of Business

DECA students competed in local competition

Throughout all the classes of marketing, such as careers and business, many students were involved in a marketing competion located at Chesterfield Towne Center. Sixty-six DECA members were competiting against many other students in the area. Schools such as Manchester, Midlothian and James River also participated. The students did not only compete with other local schools, but against their own peers. There were different catagories you could compete in according to your interest. Catagories included quick food, retail, and management. "The competion was a lot of fun, but it was very difficult at the same time," said Senior Jenna Walquist. The students got to have a free day out of school to go and participate in this competition to show off their skills. "The marketing competition at the mall was fun. We got out of school all day, but we also learned how a day on the job could be for us in the future," said Junior Pierce Picou. The purpose of this competition was to give students the opportunity to see the reality of working in the real world.

"You wouldn't think that a class learning about how businesses carry on daily activities would be fun, but the teachers make it awesome and interesting," said Robinson. Marketing students took many notes during class.

How do you think taking marketing will help you in the future?

"Careers helps teach you the basic skills you will need for your future career."

Senior Lauren Schulman

"Marketing is very useful because throughout our lives we are always selling something. Whether it be products, ideas or ourselves, we need to be aware of techniques that may help us in achieving our goals."

A Picture is Worth a Thousand Words

students use fine art electives as a means of self expression

Each year when scheduling comes around, the classes offered by the Art Department are always popular choices. Students who feel the need to nurture their creative sides have several classes to choose from. Art, Crafts, Photography, and Technical Education are only some of the classes offered. Many students use their fine art electives as a way to let out their creativity and express themselves. "In art class I find that I can express emotions freely through my artwork because it is truly a reflection of who I am," said Sophomore Taylor Muniz. The fact that there is such an extensive selection of fine art electives allows students to express themselves in many different ways. "I wanted to be an architect, and throughout the year I have expanded my technical knowledge on the subject in hopes of a brighter future," said Sophomore Travis Mulford. A student's creativity is appreciated by more than just other students. Many student artists have their work displayed in area businesses. Artwork is also shown at festivals and competitions such as the Chesterfield County Fine Arts Festival.

What is a favorite aspect of your elective?

"I like the fact that we have some of our work put in shows because it gives us the opportunity to view other people's artwork and gives them the chance to see what we've done."

Sophomore Margaret Cotter

"I really like when we can just draw whatever we want in our sketch books. That way I can really go wild and draw what I like to draw."

Right: Seniors Brad Nelson and Katy Zeller work hard during AP Government. "I really enjoyed AP classes for the opportunities they gave me to get a head start on college courses," said Nelson. Many students took these classes to prepare them for their future and accept college credit.

Wise Guys

students take learning outside of the classroom

Though many students occupied their after school time with sports, some students devoted their time to acedemic clubs. Some take advanced placement classes, while others research and debate world conflicts, or compete with other schools in a battle of academics. Students are given the privilege of taking advanced placement courses in Biology, Chemistry, Physics, US History, Govenrment, Literature, and foreign language. The many students involved in these classes received college credit for their hard work. Certain students were chosen to compete against other schools in a Battle of the Brains competition. These students practiced after school to perfect their skills and develop an edge for the competition. The Model United Nations showed its global awareness by attending conferences around the state to work through conflicts occuring within the real world. These students were an academic role model for other students and their extra efforts displayed school pride.

"Foreign language gives students the opportunity to experience hands on learning; not only from a textbook, but from a more personal view," said Ogden. Some committed students have taken more than one language at the same time this year.

Changing Perspectives

through foreign language classes students receive new viewpoints on culture

Foreign language classes created and enhanced students' opportunities to experience a new culture. Classes were offered in the subjects of French, Spanish, German, Latin, and Japanese. These classes diversified the lives of their students and allowed them to become associated with customs and traditions unlike their own. "Studying foreign languages has allowed me to broaden my perspectives, as well as making me more tolerant of new things," said Sophomore Devin Robertson. Many students commented on how their classes taught tolerance and appreciation. "Since I have studied foreign languages, I have learned to respect other cultures and their beliefs, which includes not using stereotypes," stated Sophomore Anoop Kochar. As these students stated, foreign languages provided a means for an increased knowledge of cultures. Through knowledge learned in these classes, students were able to broaden their perspectives and beliefs so that they received an even greater cultural understanding.

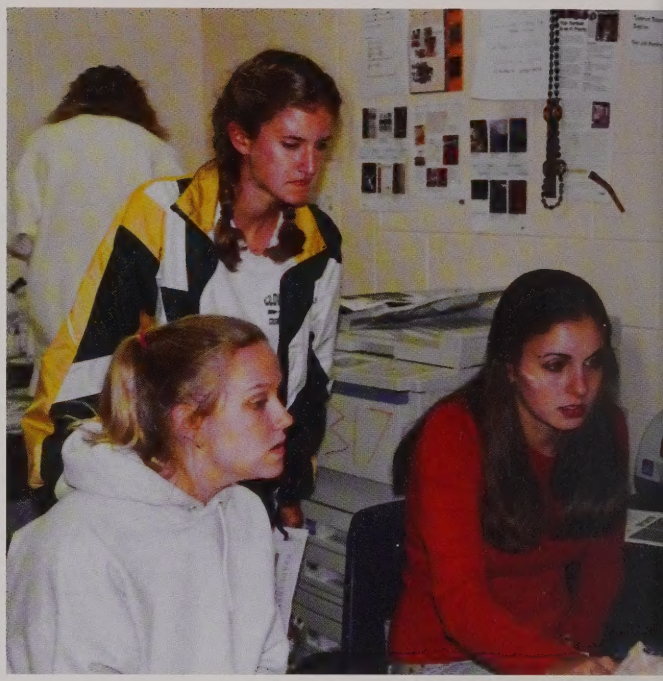
Right: Looking through different templates, Seniors Mary Peterson, Miranda Wilhelm, and Catie Skinker decide which one looks the best. "Although it's a lot of work, creating a layout can be fun," said Wilhelm. Designing the spread is just the first step to completing the book.



The New Deal

changes in the book lead to staff recognition

Every year the Ducemus staff and editors try to think of a way to differentiate the current project from the last. In the past years, new additions, like changing the setup of the book and having it in all color, made each yearbook memorable. However, it seemed as if every idea had been used, which left the editors worried about the upcoming year. "We wanted something different, something special. We realized the best way to distinguish each individual's work was by including their name on their spread," said Senior Mary Peterson. Unlike past years the students worked more independently, and they were recognized for their hard work. Along with these changes, Editors-in-Chief Catie Skinker and Mary Peterson returned to the traditional layout of a yearbook. Instead of organizing the book according to season, as done in the past two years, it was setup by categories. The new changes throughout the yearbook left the staff with a sense of accomplishment, and made this book unique.

A New Light To Right

stronger writers produce a better paper

While most students were busy planning for their summer ahead, newspaper writers were hard at work applying for journalism. Newspaper advisor Ms. Haley received around forty applications. She then narrowed her choice down to twenty of the strongest applicants. In years past not many students applied for the journalism classes. Never before was there such a large interest in the production of the school newspaper. With the addition of more students, a bigger and stronger staff was able to produce a better paper. New graphics and layouts were made available to help the newspaper become more visually entertaining. Behind the scenes the editors and J1's (first year staff) worked overtime after school, especially when deadlines were approaching. "Journalism is so much fun! Everyone works so well together and gets along great," said Sophomore Jessica Nickolas. The editors and staff kept up the teamwork, which helped to make the paper an interesting and entertaining addition to the school.

Questions Asked...

1. Was the Application for journlism difficult?
"Yes, in the sense that it was hard. About 50 applied and yet only 17 made it."

Sophomore
Jessica Nickolas

2. Is journalism an easy class?
"We have a lot of slack time, but when deadline comes everyone really works hard."

Junior
Justin Ackerman

3. What tips could you give to any student that wanted to apply for the class?
"You have to be motivated to want to write about subjects people want to read about. Writing, reashearching, and interviewing are a big part of journalism."

Acting Up, With Style

theatre and forensics perform at their best

With one of the best ranked theatre departments around and a nationally competing Forensics Team, our drama program is one of a kind. Competing in such categories as humorous interpretation, duo interpretation, impromptu, and story telling, the Forensics Team went above and beyond winning a spot at the National Forensics Tournament in Boston, Massachusetts. "Competing in Forensics really helps you gain people skills and self assurance. The confidence you gain carries over to all aspects of your life and helps prepare you for the future," said Senior Courtney Rodeheaver who has been competing in Forensics now for the fourth year in a row. The Forensics Team this year strove to survive.

Although Mrs. Marsh has only taught at our school for two years, this theatre teaching veteran has been working with drama students for sixteen years. "I like working with students who really have the desire to become better actors and are interested in the technical parts of theatre," said Mrs. Marsh. The theatre classes this year worked hard to become better performers.

Battle of the Bands

various band classes show a diversity in special talents

The band elective was divided into several classes: Advanced Band, Symphonic Band, Wind Ensemble, and Jazz Band. These classifications were formed based on instruments, skill level and what was learned in the class. The Advanced Band was for less experienced students, and the class focused on reading music, counting rhythms, and playing technique. The Symphonic Band and Wind Ensemble were for more advanced students. These classes learned more difficult music and concentrated on the finer points of playing technique and musicianship. The Symphonic Band played music more difficult than the Advanced Band but was less complex than the music played by the Wind Ensemble. Due to the amount of students in Wind Ensemble, it was then divided into three classes: woodwinds, percussion, and brass. The Jazz Band was also for more advanced classes, but the class was set up differently. Half of the class was devoted to improvising music, and the other half to playing written music specializing in jazz. The bands practiced hard and played in concerts throughout the year.

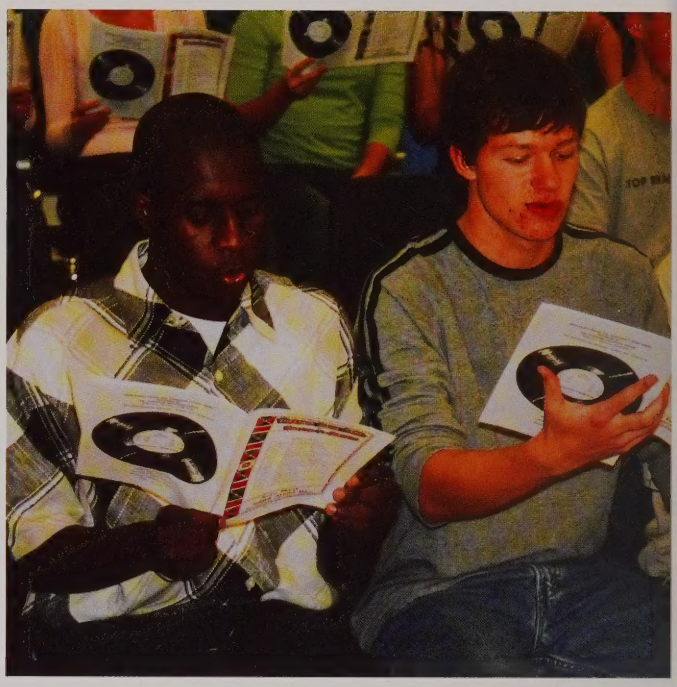
Right: Junior Coleman Luccado and Sophomore Joel Simpson rehearse new musical scores for competition. "Chorus has been a great experience for me my first few years of school," says Simpson. Acropolis' new vibes brought on a sense of liveliness to the class.



Singin' A New Tune

new moves, new songs, new looks, but the same show-stunning quality

Starting another year, all of the chorus classes saw some sweeping changes. Led again by Mr. Phil Lawson, the chorus' took the changes in stride on their way toward another award-winning year. The guys moved from just a vest to a two-piece suit, while the ladies had new dresses. The all vocal A Cappella group Acropolis changed from a traditional tune to a newer more contemporary style melody. "It's college A Cappella gone high school," said Acropolis Senior Josh Ayers. Also, the show chorus New Dimensions competed at the nationally renowned Grand Ole Opry in Nashville, Tennessee against choruses from as far away as Illinois. Along with the addition of new costumes, musical styles, and songs came the new vocalists and skills. "I've found a hidden talent in singing this year," said Iridescence Junior Lynne Kim. Even with all the alterations and modifications, the choirs displayed the same professional excellence they had always shown. "I've been in chorus all four years, and it has never been a class, rather a group of friends coming together as a family," said New Dimensions Senior Derek Emma.

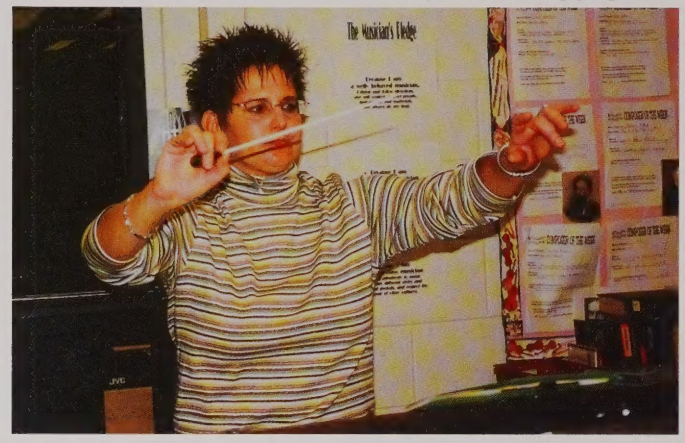
The constant focus from all students greatly contributes to the orchestra's sound.



Right: Bassist Jennifer Von der Heiden works hard at her part in the orchestra. "Balance is really hard to achieve because there are lots of factors that contribute to good sound," said Von der Heiden. Balance is one of the key principles the orchestra strives to achieve in all compositions they play.

The Sound of Music

the orchestra is alive...with new students

The orchestra has always been known for the high caliber of its students. Twelve seniors graduated in 2002, which meant that fresh, brand new students were to take seats in each of the three orchestras. The incoming freshmen provided Mrs. Melissa Gordon with quality musicians to work with, while the more advanced string players joined together to make up the Concert Orchestra. The few priviledged students who made the cut for the Chamber Orchestra got the opportunity to play fifth and sixth level music and were held to the expectations of representing the school's orchestra well. "Chamber is a lot of fun, but it's also really challenging and requires a lot of practice. There's definitely a reason for having to audition to get in," said sophomore Cristina Defraia. The new musicians didn't fail in securing a position in the first stand for every section at All County; four of the five sections' principals were from our school. The orchestras also faired well in the annual Junior and Senior Regional Orchestras and, as usual, earned all superior ratings at the District Festival.

How did you first get involved in music?

"I saw someone at my church playing the flute, and when I went to orientation, I was sure the flute was what I wanted to play. But when I tried to blow into it, I couldn't get a sound, so I decided to go into orchestra."

Briana Satchell

"I was watching a symphony orchestra perform on television when I was about four years old. I pointed to the violin section and said, "I want to play that," and that's the instrument I've stuck with."

"I enjoy how Fellowship of Christian Athletes is a place where people can come to discuss issues of life. It is not about being an athelete, but more about learning about God. We, as leaders do our best to create a fun-filled atmosphere."

Junior Daniel Clementson

"FCA is a lot of fun. It's an opportunity to talk about God openly in school without pressure."

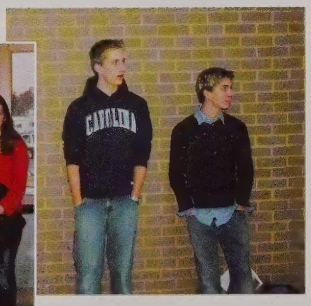
Senior Justine Fritz

"FCA is a group for Christians who participate in sports. But my favorite part is that we welcome everybody and we have an opportunity to discuss our faith at school."

Senior Krista Dover

Crosspoint

First Row: D. Harell, T. Robinson, F. Mera. Second Row: J. Lindberg, A. Bradford, B. Wooten, J. Eissler, J. Newman, J. Carlton, M. Williams, D. Clarke, K. Dover, M. Clarke, J. Price, A. Hudgins. Third Row: A. Harris, K. Haynes, A. Collins, C. Sundin, D. Jackson, M. Mahoney, J. Barbee, J. Taylor, E. Mistic, J. Sakponou, J. Reeder, J. Spencer, K. Baker, C. Jennings. Fourth Row: P. Todd, P. Thatcher, T. Ports, C. Betzares, A. Collins, J. Ports, A. Davis, H. Youssef, A. Webb.



What makes Crosspoint different that most clubs?

"Crosspoint has been such an awesome way for us to have fun and introduce people to Christ at the same time."

Senior Drew Harell

"Crosspoint has been a great experience for me. I really enjoy how we have morning devotions before school and have guest speakers come in. It's sweet."

Junior Harvey Youssef

"Crosspoint is an awesome way to gather with other Christians and share with each other what we believe in and try to bring Christ into other people's lives."

Senior Anna Hudgins

Athletic Hall of Fame

As a way of congratulating students, coaches, and contributors for their excellence in athletic activities and support, the school attempted the acknowledgement from a different perspective. The "Hall of Fame" was a new initiative for those who surpassed the average standard for athletics. With only five people inducted a year, the few inductees must attend a formal banquet for their acceptance into the "Hall of Fame." The nominees must also meet the requirement of being high school graduates for at least ten years, and with their induction, comes a feeling of great pride and success.

Rachel Hoagland, Bridget Manasco, and Dan Shrom

David Wellman~ Football, Baseball, Track (1973-1977)

Kerry Burchett~ Basketball Baseball (1972-1974) (Award accepted by sister, Karla Burchett)

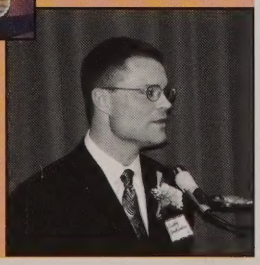
Clay Thorton~ contributed his time to Football, Cross Country and Track

Jim Wagoner~ Coach-Cross Country, Track (1974-1994)

Buddy Omohundro~ Football, Track (1984-1988)

Kirt Studivent~ Football, Track (1985-1989)

Michelle Cashwell-Soltesz~ Track (1979-1982)



David Fleming~ Football, Track (1982-1986)

The inductees were chosen by a Hall of Fame committee and matched set guidelines. "In all of the 31 years I have been working here, this is the most positive event I have been involved in," said Ted Salmon, a member of the Hall of Fame committee. The Hall of Fame helped commemorate the 30th anniversary of the school and the anniversary of athletic acheivement.

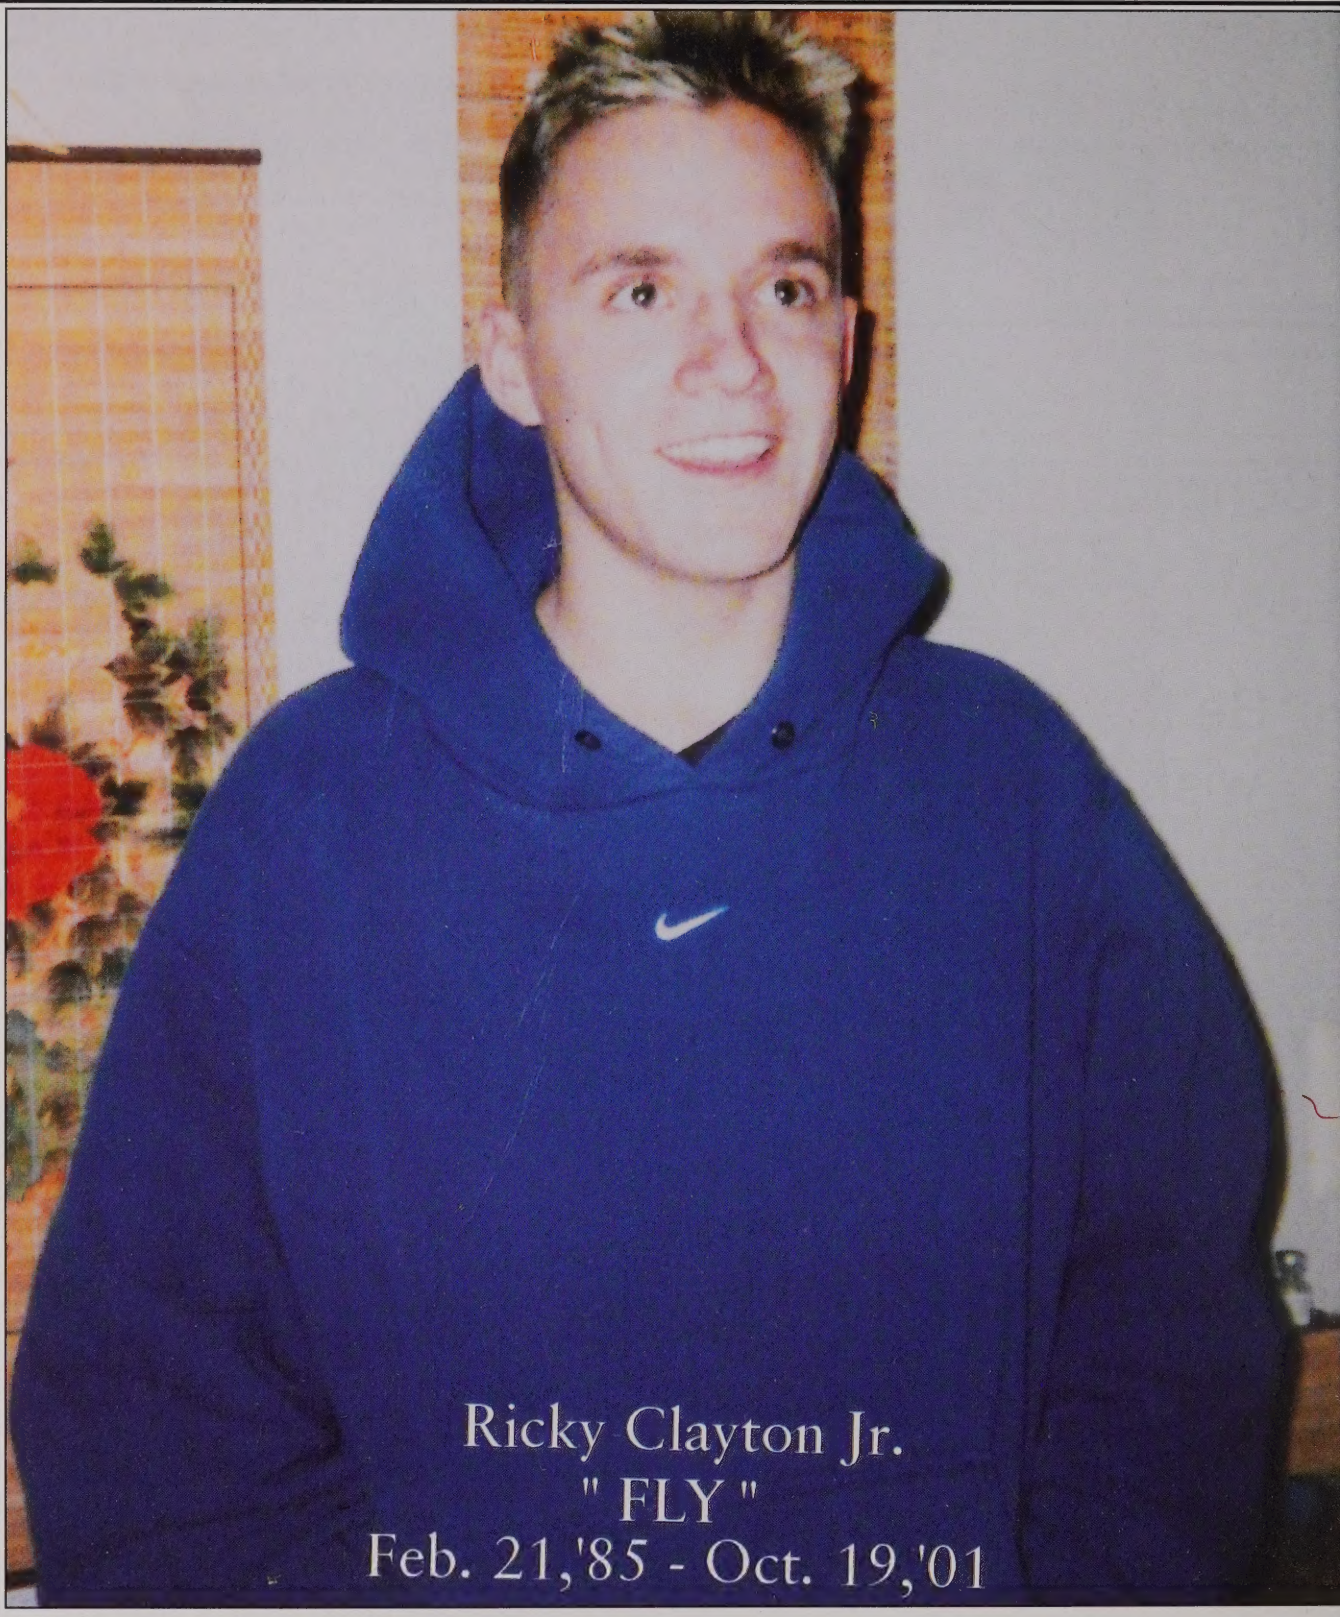
To the awesome Yearbook staff! Thanks for going all color again!! It's been a great year!

Congratulations Class of 2004!



Ricky,

We love you, we miss you, and in our hearts you'll always stay forever young.

Love,

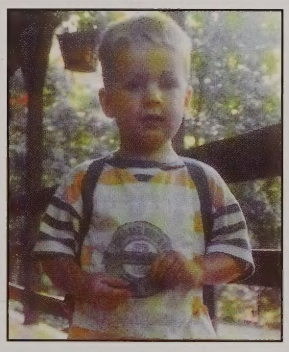
Mom, Dad, Wendy, and Jack.

Congratulations graduating
Senior Wendy Clayton.
We love you,
Mom and Dad.

Christine,
We are so proud of you!

Love,
Daddy, DiDi, and Dianna.

Dear Tim,

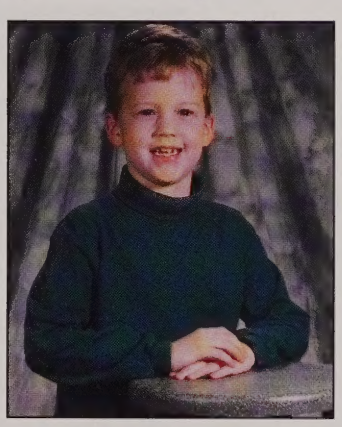


From the first day of Preschool to the last day of Math/Sci, we've been very proud of you. Good luck at VMI and in the Marines!

Love,
Mom, Dad, & Ben.

"All that is necessary for the triumph of evil is that good men do nothing."

Congratulations, Alex!



You are a wonderful, talented young man, and the light of our lives. We can't wait to see what the future unfolds for you.

We love you!
Mom & Dad

"For I know the plans I have for you," declares the Lord, "plans to prosper you and not to harm you, plans to give you hope and a future."

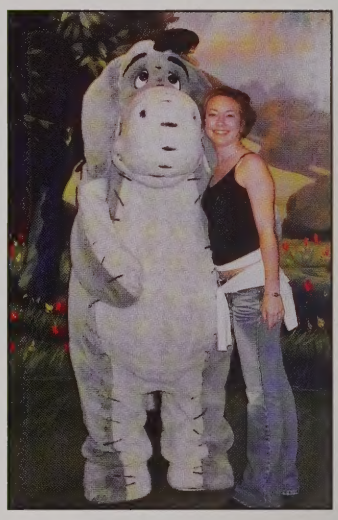
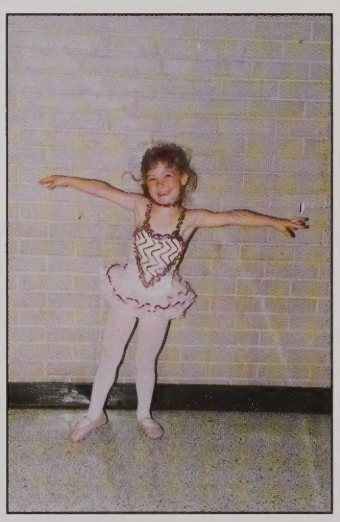
Jordan (alisa Jo, alias Smarkle),

Having children is a true blessing. Parents have hopes and dreams that their children will be happy, healthy and treat other people with respect. Parents want their children to care about others and possess a strong faith that grounds their actions. Jordan, you have fulfilled our every dream as parents. Your smile, good nature, and faithfulness to God make us feel confident that you will be successful in life. Ever since you were a baby you have smiled, sang, danced and tumbled your way into many hearts. Your love of life and laughter is evident. Oh, is it evident! But oh, what a pleasure! We love you and are so proud of you.

Love,
Mom and Dad





Kyle,

Even as an infant, you tackled adversity and showed an incredible will to survive. We are so proud of how you have always handled yourself and for the amazing young man you have become.

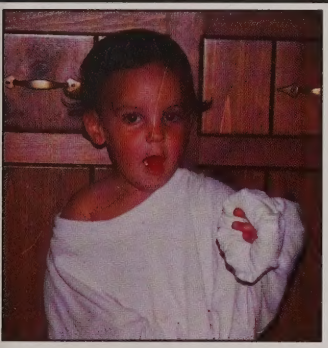
Your quiet strength, determination, and your capacity to love others for who they are will continue to serve you well in the future.

As one of your favorite leaders, Theodore Roosevelt said, "Speak softly and carry a big stick; and you will go far," and "It is always better to be an original man than an imitation."

You have never been afraid to be your own person and stand steadfast in your beliefs. Continue to live your life with honor, dignity and compassion and use the gifts that God has given you to make a positive difference in our world. Go and lead, so that others may follow.

Wherever the path takes you, always know that your family is with you every step of the way.

Congratulations and our love always!
Mom, Dad, Jonathan . . .(and Jake)



Don't Ever Forget
Your presence is a gift to the world,
You've unigue and one of a kind.
Your life can be what you want it to be -
Take it one day at a time.
Count your blessings, not your troubles,
And you'll make it through what comes along.
Within you are so many answers,
Understand, have courage, be strong.
Don't put limits on yourself,
Your dreams are waiting to be realized.
Don't leave your important decisions to chance -
Reach for your peak, your goal, and your prize.

Becoming an individual is all about discovering oneself, unlocking every aspect of our character. With every stride we take down the hallway, every locker passed, and every tile stepped on, we become closer and closer to understanding and accepting ourselves. Whether it is being an athletic sports star or a devoted fan, an outgoing class leader or a quiet academic achiever, we all find our place and embrace it. While we leave high school and move on with our lives, we take with us four years of memories: the first football game, a favorite teachers lesson, nights out with friends, the long walk from the pit, and of course, the day we, as a class, sit together for the last time. We say goodbye with mixed emotions, sad to leave behind the life we know, yet ready and excited to take the next step. Although we entered high school as a timid group with heads bent low in wonder, we leave one by one, heads held high in determination and anticipation for what lies ahead. And so we venture into the world as true individuals. The future has been unlocked...

To begin, we would like to thank our wonderful Yearbook Advisor, Mrs. Ritamarie Hensley. You taught us how to produce an entire yearbook on our own. Ok, so maybe through all of our mishaps we taught ourselves a lot too. But you were always there when we needed support even if it was only you on the other end of the phone telling us that it was too late at night for us to still be at school. You are an amazing friend and chatting with you was always our biggest means of procrastination! Over the past three years we have both had an amazing experience and are grateful for the opportunities you gave us.

Secondly, to our Jostens Representative, Mrs. Jan DeFalco, what a creative mind you possess. We want to thank you for all of your time and effort in making this book a success. Whenever we felt that we could not correct another spread you were there to remind us that we still did not have a cover in which to bind the pages. Thus, we were always willing to return to editing as we had run out of creative cover ideas. Thanks for all of your extra work and stress in finally discovering a cover to complete our dream.

Finally, we want to acknowledge and thank our entire yearbook staff and editors. Through each deadline you were always understanding of our perfectionist attitudes and willing to correct stories whenever we asked. Thank you for all of your hard work. Good luck next year!

Best of luck to the editors and staff of the 2004-2005 Ducemus. To Jessie and Sally, make everything a separate text box and do not forget that every day is busy for you now…no more free time. Remember that at the end of the year when you want to quit, don't, because in the end all of your efforts will be worth even more than you can imagine.

The 2004 Clover Hill Ducemus, Volume 32, "Unlocked" was produced under the leadership of the Editors-In-Chief, Mary Peterson and Catie Skinker. The 268 pages were printed on a sheet fed press on 9" by 12" #80 glossy enamel paper. It had a press run of 1250 copies. All 268-color pages were created on G3 and G4 Macintoshes using Adobe PageMaker 6.5.
